Wassail winner and cream of Kyffin

The Welsh sale at Rogers Jones in Cardiff on July 24 – topped by a record price for a Sir Kyffin Williams picture – included this remarkable early 19th century Ewenny pottery slipware wassail bowl and cover.

The sgraffito and potted decoration of figures and animals is accompanied by the inscriptions WIM Clay Pits 1833 and William James Tonyrevil Jany 12th 1832.

Estimated at £3000-5000, it came from the collection of Gwyneth and the late Ieuan R Evans, authors of Ewenny – Potteries, Potters and Pots.

After plenty of competition the bowl was sold to a specialist ceramics dealer at £15,000 (plus 22% buyer's premium), thought to be a record for Ewenny slipwares.

Communal purpose

Wassail bowls such as this one, measuring 15in (39cm) high, were among the largest pieces made at the Ewenny potteries and, used at communal events, normally made for the village as a whole. William James was probably the donor rather than its owner of this piece made for Tonyrevil in the parish of Lantrissant in Glamorgan.

The maker was perhaps the Claypits potter William Williams. In the South Wales News of April 30, 1892, reference is made to Williams who made wassail bowls in the 1820s for parishes at a cost of one guinea each.

Given their vulnerable nature, relatively few have survived from this period (others are known from the Arts

Christie's plan for permanent Hong Kong site

by Roland Arkell

Christie's is to step up its operations in the Far East with its first permanent saleroom and gallery space in Hong Kong.

From early 2024 the firm will relocate its Asia Pacific headquarters to The Henderson, an urban landmark on Murray Road in Central, Hong Kong, scheduled for completion in two years' time.

Christie's currently rents space ad hoc for sales and gallery viewings focused around two annual selling seasons. But the announcement of the lease means that it will take four storeys in the tower amounting to a 50,000 sq ft space.

Year-round programmes

Francis Belin, president of Christie's Asia Pacific, said: "The establishment of our first year-round saleroom and gallery space in Hong Kong provides us with the long-needed flexibility to transform our sales and events schedule from two main seasons a year, to year-round programming.

"This initiative, together with our

Boudin work sparks ownership mystery

by Laura Chesters

The status of a Eugène Boudin (1824-98) painting stolen 30 years ago from a Mayfair art dealership is currently in limbo while the rightful owner is sought.

The Impressionist northern France beach scene Trouville – Scène de Plage is believed to be one of two paintings stolen from Richard Green in May 1990. At the time an insurance claim was made and a reward for £40,000 was put up a month later. However, it is not known if that reward was ever claimed.

Currently it is registered as stolen on the Art Loss Register (ALR) database, but there is no information about which insurance firm was involved and who holds the title of the picture now. A spokesperson for Richard Green said enquiries should be directed to the ALR.

Flea market buy

The picture has come to light after it was brought to dealer Jon White, who runs Old Bank Antiques in Royal Wootton Bassett.

A woman from Wiltshire had inherited it from her late father who had bought it at a flea market decades ago.

ALR currently has little

information on the picture. James Ratcliffe said: “Sadly it can be difficult to track down insurance details 30 years after a theft if they were not provided to us originally. Paper files are destroyed and electronic ones deleted, increasingly in the name of data protection.

“That is why we always urge registrants to provide as much information as possible to us at the time they report a loss. This particular theft occurred just as the ALR was in the process of being set up, so was not registered directly.”

White told ATG: “Our customer’s father bought this picture in good faith. I’m appealing to anyone who can help to trace the insurance company so that we can return the painting and resolve this for all concerned.”

He has now enlisted the services of Christopher Marinello, CEO of Art Recovery International.

& Crafts era) with this example in relatively good condition despite the losses to the figures and strapwork that adorn the cover. It had previously sold at Bonhams in 2010 for £8000.

Kyffin record

The sale also posted a new record for Sir Kyffin Williams (1918-2006).

His work, highly familiar in terms of style, technique, subject and composition, appears with great regularity at auction.

However, the wide format, the bright sunlit colouring and presence of foreground figures in the 20in x 3ft 7in (50cm x 1.1m) oil Ynys Mon stood out from the standard oeuvre. It came to auction from a Welsh vendor whose parents bought it in c.1982 from Tegfryn Gallery in Anglesey (they acquired it the day after the artist had delivered it to the dealership).

Estimated at £50,000-70,000, it eventually fell at £62,000 to a commission bidder.

The buyer was an existing client of Rogers Jones based in the south of England but with fond childhood memories of the Anglesey village of Rhoscolyn shown in the picture – he was even christened in the chapel that is featured in the centre of the painting.

The price beat the £60,000 hammer price that the auction house achieved for Fox Shoot in 2016.

presence in Beijing, Shanghai and other key cities in Asia, will enable Christie’s to respond to and build upon the recent record surge in worldwide collecting we have seen from Asian clients.”

Asian buyers have become the dominant force at the top end of the auction market, according to Christie’s most recent results.

The firm’s figures from the first half of 2021 included record participation from Asia Pacific clients who accounted for 39% of total purchases by value.

In all of the ‘luxury’ categories (jewellery, wine, watches and handbags), more than 50% of Christie’s offering was bought by clients from the region, with some niche areas now dominated by Far Eastern purchasers. Over 70% of watches at Christie’s were sold to Asian buyers.

Buyers from the EMA countries (Europe, Middle East and Africa) accounted for 33% of transactions and the Americas 28%.

Total auction sales at Christie’s from January to June were $2.64bn, with private sales taking the headline figure to $3.5bn – 13% higher than pre-pandemic levels.

Dealer selling platform 2Covet expands team

The online selling platform for dealers 2Covet.com has expanded during the coronavirus pandemic and has increased its team to 13.

Founded in 2019 by dealers Steve Sly and Charles Wallrock and marketing specialist Zara Rowe, the firm has also taken over the running of The Chelsea Antiques Fair.

Fair director Sophie Wood (previously at LAPADA) joined in March.

Other recruits are Steven Beacham and Xenia Berry in sales and accounts; in the development team Scott Howell, Tom Garratt and Saul Gooding; in marketing Molly McNeaney and Hannah Finlay; Frances Bell as content creator and graphic designer; and Jenna Waterfield in social media.

Wallrock said: “The 2Covet business model was prepared and launched just prior to the pandemic. When lockdowns were enforced our antiques selling platform came into its own for buyers, collectors and dealers.

“It speeded up our growth. Between March and June 2020 we saw an 283% increase in business and we’ve been growing ever since with more dealers joining all the time.

“We have recruited more staff at this stage than we had anticipated, but it proves that we are offering what dealers and their clients want.”

Sister firm The Antique Marketing Company run by Rowe now has nearly 40 clients.

The Chelsea Antiques Fair – the 70th anniversary of the venerable event – will take place at the Chelsea Old Town Hall on September 21-26 with a preview day for collectors on September 20.

Pick of the week

'Union Jack' cup flags up Worcester

A solitary English blue and white porcelain coffee cup emerged from the relative anonymity of a one-line catalogue description and a £120-180 estimate to sell for £4100 at Keys in Aylsham on July 24. As the price suggested, this was something special.

By the mid 1750s the Worcester factory, based at Warmstry House on the banks of the Severn, was making the best English blue and white tea wares that money could buy. However, the first two or three years of production from 1751 had been a learning curve with the earliest wares often found with poorly controlled cobalt decoration.

This simple thrown and turned cup is painted in underglaze-blue with a chinoiserie scene known to collectors as the 'Union Jack House' pattern. The name reflects the curious criss-cross rendering of a cottage that, in a misreading of Chinese decoration, has prunus blossom apparently growing from its chimney.

The pattern was produced at Benjamin Lund's factory in Bristol c.1750 (a coffee cup was sold by Bonhams in 2004 for £8500) and it probably travelled up the Severn in early 1752 when the Bristol concern was sold to Dr John Wall and the other 13 shareholders in the Worcester Tonquin Manufactory.

Only a handful of pieces of this early Worcester class are known. However, they include a cup with the same loop handle from the Watney collection sold for £2400 by Bonhams in 2000 and another with a scroll handle and the inscription TB 1753 to the base discussed in Aileen Dawson's The Art of Worcester Porcelain: Masterpieces of the British Museum Collection (2007).

Part of the BM collection since 1926, it has long been deemed 'the earliest known dated piece of Worcester blue and white' but recently, in The Origins of Worcester Porcelain (2018), Ray Jones has suggested the numbers are not a date at all but two adjacent inscriptions by different hands relating to trial firings.

If true, it is tempting to suggest these 'union jack' cups, with their naive decoration and pitted glaze, are from the very first days of production at Worcester.

Above: two views of a 'Union Jack House' pattern Worcester cup sold for £4100 at Keys in Aylsham.

When Bonhams Knightsbridge offered a similar cup for sale in June 2019 (sold at £6000), it was catalogued as c.1751-53.

Keys' cup, with a crack to the handle, came for sale from a local source (specialist David Broom had first seen it a year ago and had finally persuaded the owner to part with it). The winning bidder, at a price that with 20% buyer's premium was just shy of £5000, was an overseas collector.

UK restorer to face antiquities charge

The Manhattan district attorney's office is investigating a multi-million-pound Asian antiquities 'trafficking ring' and has arrested a British antiques restorer as part of the case.

District Attorney Cy Vance Jr announced the indictment of Neil Perry Smith, 58, following his extradition from London.

Charges are for possessing and restoring 22 stolen pieces, with an estimated value of more than $32m. The items were alleged to have been stolen from Cambodia, Thailand and Nepal and were to be sold at dealer Subhash Kapoor's New York gallery, Art of the Past.

Perry Smith, Kapoor and six other co-defendants were indicted in October 2019 following a year-long investigation.

Cawdron-Stewart joins Mayfair firm

Dealer Offer Waterman has appointed Robin Cawdron-Stewart as director.

Having spent the past decade working at auction houses, most recently as director of Modern British art at Sotheby's, he will now join the Mayfair gallery in September.

A graduate of the University of Edinburgh, he previously led Sotheby's Made in Britain sales and also worked on the sales of prominent single-owner collections including those of David Bowie, AJ Thompson and Mary Soames as well as the studio sale of artists Mary Fedden and Julian Trevelyan.

He is a specialist in both Modern British art and contemporary and studio ceramics.

Artemis promotes Rubin-Dienstfrey

US auction firm Artemis Gallery in Colorado has promoted Sydelle Rubin-Dienstfrey to head of the company's new fine and visual arts department.

She joined the firm, which specialises in online auctions of ancient and ethnographic art, in 2013. From 2002-13, Rubin-Dienstfrey was a member of the adjunct faculty at the University of Colorado at Boulder and taught classes at the university.

Frieze October dates announced

Phillips reports latest sales figures

Auction house Phillips reported $542.7m in total sales in the first half of 2021 (January to July), up 15% on the same period in 2019.

Private sales were up 107% in the period to $90.7m and auction turnover was $452m, up 15%. Asia-based buyers accounted for 34% of Phillips' global sales.

Swiss design fair set for September

The 15th edition of design fair Design Miami/Basel will be held on September 21-26 in Switzerland. There will be 40 exhibitors including 15 debut galleries. The federal regulations for events in Switzerland require all those attending to be fully vaccinated, supply a recent negative Covid-19 test or have proof of antibodies.

Strong demand for Sylvia Plath lots

Letters, photographs and gifts once owned by writer and poet Sylvia Plath doubled pre-sale estimates when they were offered at Sotheby's on July 21.

The 55 lots took a premium-inclusive price of £780,000 with the poet's tarot cards (a birthday gift from Hughes) selling at 25 times their top estimate at £120,000 (or £151,000 including premium).

Museum burglars take artist's medals

Two medals awarded to the late artist Charles Tunnicliffe (1901-79) were stolen when The Silk Museum in Macclesfield was burgled last week.

Tunnicliffe, born near the Cheshire town, received a gold medal for his services to bird protection by the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds in 1975 and an OBE for service to the arts in 1978.

The museum said: "On top of the thieves creating a huge amount of damage to the museum building, they have smashed our donations box, taken public donations as well as stealing the two medals.

"This a callous act and is a huge blow to the museum in

Snowy Swiss valley gets a warm sale welcome

A high price for a Russian picture came at Rushbrooks (22.5% buyer's premium inc VAT) when a work by Ivan Fedorovich Choultse (1877-1932) drew eight different bidders.

Vers Le Soir, Engadine was consigned to the Winchester auction house – previously part of Bellmans but launched under the new guise earlier this year – from a descendant of one Rev William Ross. He had bought it at an exhibition of the artist's work in Paris in the 1920s and the 2ft 1in x 2ft 8in (64 x 81cm) signed oil on canvas had an old label on the verso giving the title of the work.

Choultse was born in St Petersburg and was already an established artist by the time he left Russia after the Revolution before settling in Paris permanently in the early 1920s. He continued to travel widely and built up an international clientele for his works including collectors from France, the UK and the US.

Such snowy subjects were a speciality of Choultse with his views of this valley in the Swiss Alps being among his most popular works. In the last 10 years, a number of good-sized examples have made strong five-figure and even six-figure prices at auction.

The picture here was estimated at £30,000 at the timed online sale (the format in which all Rushbrooks' auctions take place) that closed on July 11. In a decent state with only some slight scuff marks and small areas of retouching visible under UV light, its ready-to-hang condition added to its favourable size and trademark style and subject. It was bid to a final £86,500, selling to a European buyer.

Exceptional bravery

A house record for a medal also set a new high for a British army Victoria Cross, as Tom Derbyshire reports – along with recent stand-out results in the militaria collecting field

Any Victoria Cross fitting of the description ‘unique and exceptional’ is likely to make a stand-out price.

An 1891 honour worthy of that assessment set a world auction record for a British army VC – and a top sum for a Victorian VC – at London saleroom Dix Noonan Webb (24% buyer’s premium) on June 23.

Awarded to 30-year-old Scotsman Lieutenant, later Colonel, Charles Grant, of the 12th Regiment (2nd Burma Battalion) Madras Infantry, it was among a group of five sold for £420,000 – an in-house auction record for a medal at DNW – to a ‘relatively new collector of British gallantry awards’ after competition between two phone bidders. The estimate was £300,000-400,000.

Rescue operation

It was on hearing of the execution of British officials and the capture of others after a new maharajah took over at Manipur, on the Burmese border, that Grant had immediately set out to relieve the captives and exact retribution.

At the head of his 80-man detachment - 40 Ghurkas and 40 Punjabi troops – he stormed an enemy position under a heavy fire at Thobal, driving the 800-strong foe from their entrenched defences.

Taking up a defensive position within improvised fortifications, Grant then became surrounded by an estimated 2000 of the returning enemy which attacked the small force over a period of eight days.

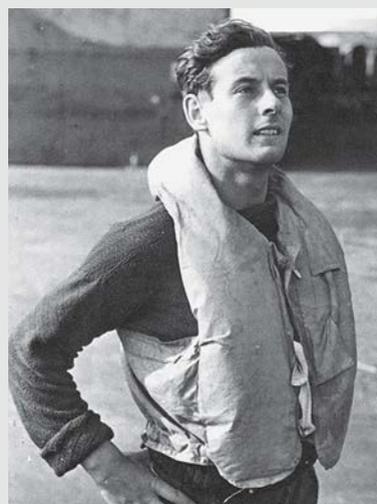

Grant led a number of brilliant sallies to dislodge and disperse the Manipuris each time they approached and then, in negotiations over the release of prisoners, deceived them into thinking they were facing a much larger force – he recalled that he “borrowed two stars from a jemadar’s shoulder straps and placed them on his own... no longer a Subaltern commanding a small detachment, but a Colonel, with his regiment at his back.”

With dwindling ammunition and growing

Lover and a fighter: Battle of Britain ace Peter Townsend

Another medal group that impressed at Dix Noonan Webb, in its July 21 auction, featured a rather more famous recipient: RAF Group Captain Peter Townsend (1914-95).

Although best known to the public for his controversial romance with Princess Margaret, Townsend epitomised ‘The Few’, completing over 300 operational sorties while commanding No 85 Squadron from May 1940 until June 1941.

His Battle of Britain group of 11 was expected to fetch £160,000-200,000 but went for £260,000 to one of several phone bidders competing. It was bought by a UK collector.

Appointed equerry to George VI in 1944, and comptroller to the Queen Mother’s household in 1953, Townsend’s forlorn romance with the queen’s sister (he was a divorcee) brought him further celebrity status to add to his wartime achievements.

The group of 11 includes a CVO, DSO, DFC and Second Award Bar and was sold with the recipient’s original flying logbooks, bound in one volume – with later annotation in his own hand – covering the entirety of his operational career.

The medals were first sold in November 1988, with Townsend donating the proceeds to a charitable fund set up to assist children.

They had sold at DNW in 2004 for £62,000 to a British private collector.

PM went into battle

The sale of a Military Cross group of honours at Woolley & Wallis (25/12% buyer's premium) of Salisbury marked what is believed to be the first time that the medals of a British prime minister have been offered at auction.

The PM in question was Anthony Eden, who held that office from 1955-57. His MC group, including later honours such as coronation medals, sold for £22,000 to a private collector against an estimate of £7000-10,000 on June 22.

As a young man he was involved in the formation of the 21st Battalion King's Royal Rifle Corps (Yeoman Rifles) during the First World War. Eden was a member of Eton College Officer Training Corps, and the outbreak of the war had found him eager, like many of his generation, to find a place in a regiment.

His brother Jack was killed in action in 1914, and this seems only to have quickened his enthusiasm. His initial efforts were hampered by poor eyesight, but his chance came when a family friend, the Earl of Feversham, set about raising the new battalion.

Eden went with the Yeoman Rifles to the Western Front as a junior officer and his early exploits included an abortive trench raid following which he led the hazardous rescue of a wounded sergeant.

The battalion was deployed to the Somme front in September 1916 where its commander Lord Feversham was killed in action, and his replacement appointed the young Eden as his adjutant, in which capacity he gave exemplary service.

His MC was gazetted in June 1917, shortly before he went into action following the detonation of the mine under Messines Ridge at the start of the 3rd Battle of Ypres.

disease among his ranks, Grant successfully withdrew his force to link up with reinforcements. Leading his men to the attack once more to take a fort he was badly wounded, after which he was carried triumphantly into Manipur by his men, and those concerned in the murder of British officers were punished.

Christopher Mellor-Hill at DNW said: "This further underlines the stature of the VC as the world's most famous gallantry award. Col Grant's bravery for his fighting leadership in the capture and defence of the fort at Thobal earned him the tribute of one of his Gurkha soldiers who said 'How could we be beaten under Grant Sahib? He is a tiger in fight'."

The VC was sold together with a substantial associated archive. Items of particular significance included Grant's unpublished leather-bound 'Officer's Field Note and Sketch Book and Reconnaissance Aide-Memoire' illustrated by several detailed sketches of both actions and positions, a file of original letters, including the negotiations between Grant and the Manipuris and a coded message from Grant in Greek characters to the relief force.

The VC is the highest British military decoration, awarded for valour in the face of the enemy. Since its introduction in 1856 a total of 1354 medals have been awarded. Grant was the 406th recipient.

Hand-to-hand actions

The 150th VC to be awarded sold for a hammer price of £180,000 at London auction house Spink (20% buyer's premium) on July 29.

The Indian Mutiny VC group of three including the Order of the Bath and CB (Military) Companion's breast badge earned by General James Blair, 2nd Bombay Light Cavalry, had been estimated at £160,000-200,000.

Blair was decorated for his remarkable bravery in two separate hand-to-hand actions, one of which saw him required to use the broken hilt of his sword to personally lead a charge against the enemy after he had broken the blade against the head of one of his enemy. He was severely wounded on both occasions.

The group was purchased at Spink in 1969. This time it was bought by a UK-based phone bidder who beat a commission bidder. ■

See p15 for a Spink RAF medal group highlight.

Remarkable record

A group of medals awarded to a recipient who served in three very collectable units – 1st Kings Royal Rifle Corps, The Parachute Regiment and later 22nd SAS Regiment – sold for £14,000 at British Bespoke Auctions (22/15/12.5% buyer's premium). Consigned by a private vendor and estimated at £3000-5000 in Gloucestershire on July 15, they were given to Major Royston George Ball MBE who saw action in various theatres and actions in the 1950s-60s, primarily in the Middle East and south-east Asia.

Items also sold in this lot (left) included an SAS plaque engraved Major R.G Ball MBE All Ranks 23rd SAS December 1971 and his original SAS beret with cloth cap badge.

Hero esteemed as Nelson's gallant protégé and friend

Letters written by Nelson to his wife make obvious his esteem for Captain Sir William Hoste KCB (1780-1828). He was "without exception, one of the finest boys I ever met with", while his "...gallantry can never be exceeded, and each day rivets him stronger to my heart".

Hoste's renown clearly resonated with collectors too, as proved when his small Naval Gold Medal for the Battle of Lissa in the Adriatic Sea in 1811 sold for £100,000 at London auction house Morton & Eden (20% buyer's premium) on July 13.

Estimated at £60,000-80,000, it was bought by an anonymous private collector bidding by phone.

M&E medal specialist David Kirk said: "We are delighted for the family, and we feel that this result does real justice to what is, without doubt, a superb medal. Captain Sir William Hoste was an extremely important naval figure, as well as being a protégé and friend of Nelson."

It was part of a collection of family medals that had remained in the collection of Hoste's descendants until now and made a premium-inclusive £171,960.

Instituted to recognise admirals and captains during the revolutionary and Napoleonic wars, the Naval Gold Medal was awarded for naval victories from 1794-1815. Captains received the smaller version with only up to 100 issued.

The example awarded to Captain (later Vice Admiral) William Bligh of The Bounty fame in 1797 for the defeat of the Dutch fleet at Camperdown sold on estimate at Melbourne, Australia, saleroom Noble Numismatics for Aus$200,000 (£120,000) in July 2011.

Swift rise

Hoste's Royal Navy career began with an introduction, engineered by his father, to Horatio Nelson and the role of captain's servant aboard the newly refitted HMS Agamemnon.

He was by Nelson's side from 1793-98 and present at both the Battle of St Vincent and the Battle of the Nile. Hoste rose swiftly to the rank of captain and would go on to become, in his own right, one of the great frigate captains of the Napoleonic Wars.

However, he would miss the great sea battle of Trafalgar while delivering diplomatic gifts and messages to the Dey of Algiers. On hearing of his mentor's death, Hoste wrote to his father: "Not to have been in this battle is enough to make one mad; but to have lost such a friend besides is really sufficient to almost overwhelm me..."

In Hoste's finest hour, during the opening stages of the Battle of Lissa (the island today known as Vis in the Adriatic Sea) on March 13, 1811, he raised the signal 'Remember Nelson' from HMS Amphion in honour of his friend. Met with loud cheers, he then led his ships in a devastating attack on the larger French and Venetian squadron.

In July 1814 he was made baronet and on the reorganisation of the Order of the Bath in 1815 he was nominated KCB. His Knight Commander's neck badge, 1814 for The Most Excellent Order of the Bath, KCB (Military Division) was also included in the auction and sold for £16,000 (estimate £4000-5000).

Hoste was also awarded the Insignia of a Knight of Maria Theresa, conferred on him by the Emperor of Austria for his services at Cattaro in 1813 and Ragusa in 1814. This fetched £17,000 (estimate £12,000-15,000). All the lots mentioned above went to the same buyer.

Hoste's first son, Rear-Admiral Sir William Legge Hoste, would go on to serve with distinction in the Royal Navy (his pair for the Second China War, 1857-60, sold for a within-estimate £3800) while the Great War medals and memorial plaque given to the last member of the family to bear the names sold for £5000 (estimate £400-600).

Lt Sir William Graham was killed in action on May 9, 1915, aged 20, in France, while serving in the 2nd Battalion, Rifle Brigade.

Salvaged from scuttled ship

On a single day in 1919 the Imperial German Navy achieved the impressive feat of sinking 52 vessels. Unfortunately, they were its own ships.

At 10.30am on June 21 Admiral von Reuter's seemingly innocuous message Paragraph Eleven; confirm went out, code for his men to scuttle their vessels. Fifty-two out of 70 boats interned at the end of the Great War in Scapa Flow slid beneath the waves.

One of those which failed to sink itself was V46, a high seas torpedo boat launched in 1914, capable of 34.5 knots.

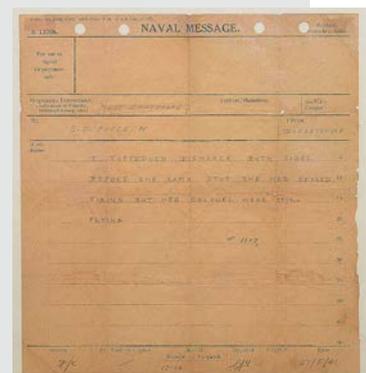

On June 10 this year a bulkhead clock mounted in a walnut case with a plaque inscribed Salved from V46 Scuttled at Scapa June 21 1919 was estimated at £400-600 in the Charterhouse (25% buyer's premium) auction. Signed Franz Happe Kiel, 2655 on the 6in (15cm) diameter silvered dial, it sold for £2200.

Sink the Bismarck

This first-hand document recording one of the most significant naval events of the Second World War – the sinking of the German battleship Bismarck – was offered at Catherine Southon (20% buyer's premium) in Surrey on June 9.

The Royal Navy telegraph message dated May 27, 1941, was sent from HMS Dorsetshire reporting the sinking on a printed naval message slip filled in using a pencil by the operator stating: Most Immediate To SO Force H From Dorsetshire. 1 Torpedoed Bismarck Both Sides Before She Sank Stop She Had Ceased Firing But Her Colours Were Still Flying.

The framed message was estimated at £400-600 but found many admirers before selling to a UK collector on thesaleroom.com for £850.

Airship disaster

A small fragment of a significant airship comes up for auction at Spicers in Old Goole, East Yorkshire, to mark a tragic centenary. Built in Bedfordshire, the R38 was sent for testing to Howden, also East Yorkshire.

Aviation historian Kenneth Deacon recorded that the "R38 was commissioned towards the end of the First World War and was planned to be the first of four ships that could patrol for up to a week at a time, far out to sea. It was a giant of the sky, 695ft long and 85ft high. To assist with its performance the fuselage was made from lightweight metal, a decision which later proved to be its undoing."

The airship was sold to the US Navy and renamed the ZR.2.

Heading for an airbase in Norfolk on August 24, 1921, the craft, unable to land, returned towards Howden and over the Humber the airship carried out some high-speed turns. The stress on the fuselage was too much and the craft broke in two, causing a large explosion. It crashed in flames into the Humber just off Hull's Victoria Pier. Of the 49 people on board, only five survived.

This 3½ x 3½in (9 x 9cm) fragment discovered by a Hull family while going through a family postcard album along with two related postcards is estimated at £200-400 on August 27.

The POW experience visualised

One of the prisoners to survive the horrors of the Changi camp in the Second World War was a 25-year-old art school dropout who later became a renowned illustrator.

Ronald Searle (1920-2011) had been captured by the Japanese just a month after arriving in Singapore, having enlisted in the Royal Engineers in 1939. He would pass the time by sketching and even started a secret POW magazine with a couple of other inmates. After 14 months in Changi he was sent to work on the Siam-Burma Railway.

An archive relating to the camp and the building of the railway came up at auction at Tennants (20% buyer's premium) of Leyburn on June 30.

It was collected by Changi prisoner Captain Harry Edward Witheford (1912-2008) and included sketches, hand-drawn greetings cards and a calendar by Searle, his friend.

Witheford – also captured at the fall of Singapore – made many friends among his fellow prisoners. They included the Australian author Russell Braddon, then a gunner in the 2/15th Field (Artillery) Regiment who later recounted his experiences in the bestselling memoir, The Naked Island (illustrated by Searle). The book was one of the first to describe in grim detail the appalling treatment the POWs received.

Books by Braddon plus Witheford's medals were included in Toovey's archive, which sold just over top estimate at £4200 to a private collector from the Far East bidding online.

Witheford survived the war and spent time working in Kenya during the 1950s before he and his family returned to the UK, settling in North Yorkshire. The vendor was from the north of England, a friend of the Witheford family, to whom it had been left.

Theatrical leanings

Another lot revealing life as a POW was sold at fellow North Yorkshire saleroom Elstob & Elstob (22% buyer's premium) on June 19.

Relating to 2nd Lt Clarence Banyon Pickard of the 22nd Durham Light Infantry, who was captured by the Germans in the First World War, this collection revealed a rather different experience to Changi, however.

It included a photograph and postcard album, containing many black and white images of an amateur dramatics group formed by servicemen at the Schweidnitz POW Camp.

Pickard's medals and three postcards and three letters sent from Schweidnitz between June-October 1918 and addressed to his sweetheart, Gwen Johnson of Hartlepool, also featured.

1. Archive of Changi prisoner of war Captain Harry Edward Witheford including sketches, hand-drawn greetings cards and a calendar by his friend Ronald Searle – £4200 at Tennants.
2. Detail of a calendar by Searle from the Witheford archive.
3. Images of amateur dramatics at a First World War POW camp from archive of 2nd Lt Clarence Banyon Pickard – £550 at Elstob & Elstob.
4. Watercolour of Lt Lewis Pash Renateau by Raphael Drouart – £145 at Thimbleby & Shorland.

The letters detail how Pickard was shot through the hip on the battlefield and hospitalised, his mother mistakenly informed he had been killed in action. One letter had been cut by a censor but had a note The British Censorship is not responsible for the mutilation of this letter.

Guided at £100-150, the archive sold for £550 to a collector in Australia who bid online. The vendors are based in the Durham area and relatives of Pickard.

Captive audience

A signed framed and glazed watercolour by Raphael Drouart (1894-1972) of Lt Lewis Pash

Renateau (d.1978) was offered in a timed online auction ending on July 25 at Thimbleby & Shorland's (12/10% buyer's premium) Reading saleroom.

Lt Renateau, an officer in the Canadian Expeditionary Force during the First World War, was taken prisoner near St Julien, near Ypres, on April 24, 1915. He was transferred to the Giessen prisoner of war camp, where fellow prisoner Drouart took his portrait.

A second portrait of Renateau by Drouart is held in the National Army Museum's collection. This one sold within estimate at £145 to an online bidder, believed to be a private collector.

‘Dead Man’s Penny’ to female recipients

The near ubiquitous ‘Dead Man’s Penny’ of the First World War becomes a rarity should the recipient be female.

A good example was offered by Mellors & Kirk (20% buyer’s premium) in Nottingham on June 8.

Sold for a within-estimate £2800 to an English private collector was the bronze memorial plaque and memorial scroll for Lilian Florence Harper of the Women’s Royal Air Force, addressed to Mr GSA Harper of 99 Market Street, Eastleigh.

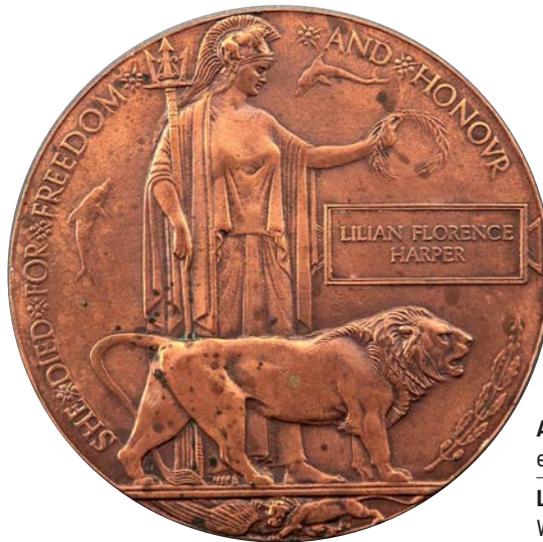

It came for sale by descent to the present vendor.

More than a million of the plaques were awarded for men who lost their lives during the conflict, but only around 600 were issued to women.

Deaths up to April 1919 (and possibly later) could still lead to the presentation of a plaque, if either remaining in service or the death was accepted as war related.

Harper, who died on February 22, 1919, aged 18, was one of 41 members of the WRAF to be issued with a plaque. The separate women’s air service was only a wartime force, formed on April 1, 1918, and disbanded in April 1920.

A ‘Death Penny’ awarded to Violet Porter, WRAF, sold for £3500 at Spink in November

Above: First World War memorial plaque to Emily Davies – estimate £3000-5000 at Tennants on September 8.

2019 (ATG No 2415). Born in 1899, Porter joined up in January 1918 and served at an aircraft repair depot in Chelsea. She died of influenza on Armistice Day, November 11, 1918.

Army nurse

A memorial plaque to an army nurse is estimated at £3000-5000 in Tennants’ Militaria and Ethnographica Sale on September 8 in Leyburn, North Yorkshire. Alice Emily Dawes enlisted in the army on October 15, 1917 serving as a nursing sister with Queen Alexandra’s Imperial Military Nursing Service before she died of influenza and pneumonia on October 23, 1918. She was buried in Bedford Cemetery in a Commonwealth War Grave.

The plaque is being sold with a fitted leather case and copies of research material.

Relics reveal a distinguished military family

The Galloways were a distinguished Victorian military family, as a number of items sold at Suffolk auction house Bishop & Miller (22% buyer’s premium) revealed.

Lots included the full-dress uniform, c.1840s, and journals of Major General Sir Archibald Galloway KCB (1779-1850). He fought in the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (taking part in the attack on Delhi in 1803 and distinguishing himself by his gallantry at the bloody siege of Bhurtpore where he sustained a wound to the throat in 1805), was knighted by Queen Victoria and rose to become chairman of the Honourable East India Company.

The five handwritten journals date from May 15, 1800, when Galloway sailed out to India as a young ensign to join the 14th Regiment of Bengal Native Infantry in the army of the Honourable East India Company and covers the period of the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War, as well as details of his own service.

They contain news, detailed accounts and copies of despatches of engagements by Sir Arthur Wellesley who was commanding another force in India at the same time, and by detachments of his own army under Lake, as well as actions from further afield (Trafalgar, Ulm).

Galloway clearly had an interest in the history and culture of India and the journals also contain descriptions of weather conditions, villages and their architecture, along with well-known buildings such as the Taj Mahal.

Galloway’s unpublished journals were a ‘wonderful source of information on the operations of the East India Company at the beginning of the 19th century’, said the saleroom. Estimated at £800-1200, they made £25,500. His uniform sold for £5000 against a guide of £1000-1500. They were both bought by a collector in India.

Admiral’s career

Also offered as a single lot on April 30 in Stowmarket was the midshipman’s uniform jacket and large quantity of personal and official papers belonging to Admiral Arthur Galloway (1855-1918).

The grandson of Sir Archibald, Arthur’s father was in the Indian Civil Service and serving as Magistrate of Delhi when he was killed during the Indian Mutiny.

Admiral Galloway – who was also the grandnephew of Sir Colin Campbell of Peninsular and Waterloo fame and Vice Admiral Sir Patrick Campbell, a distinguished naval officer of the Napoleonic Wars – joined the Royal Navy in 1869. His papers give an intimate insight into the workings of the RN in the Victorian and Edwardian periods. His long career included service on the China Station, the Egyptian campaign in 1882, diplomatic work in Venezuela, tackling Jamaican riots and the Channel Fleet. He served on 29 ships in all and was twice commended for jumping overboard to save stricken sailors.

The lot realised £3000 via thesaleroom.com, three times the top estimate, going to a collector in East Sussex.

The vendor inherited the various Galloway items.

The 'Tubby' pilot who flew 100 operational sorties

As his nickname suggests, Wing Commander Sidney Baker (1918-2007) enjoyed the finer things in life. While notable RAF figures gained monikers such as Cats Eyes Cunningham and Sailor Malan, Baker was 'Tubby'.

He was also hard as nails, as his standing as a member of an elite 'club' indicates: airmen who notched up 100 operational sorties during the Second World War.

Baker did all of his 'century' against the most heavily defended targets in Europe in heavy bombers; further still, some 20 of them were completed as Master Bomber.

The 'Immediate' 1944 DSO and 1945 'Immediate' Bar, 1943 DFC and 1944 Bar group of six awarded to 'Tubby' Baker appeared at London auction house Spink (20% buyer's premium) on July 29 and sold to for £70,000 against an estimate of £28,000-32,000.

They had been originally purchased directly from the recipient's family and this was the first occasion they were offered on the open market.

The 100th sortie came on March 13, 1945, a daylight mission as Master Bomber flying Lancaster PB914 to Wuppertal, where he made several runs over the target and remained for over 20 minutes.

Spink said that as soon as he landed Baker was "finally 'grounded' and presented with a Bar to his DSO to go with a pint of beer" – the latter was photographed going down in one (see above).

"His unique record of service marks him out amongst the finest to have flown with Bomber Command and the Path Finder Force during the Second World War, while it should be noted the citation for that last award is striking in its similarity to that of Wing Commander Leonard Cheshire's Victoria Cross."

Cheshire was another member of the '100 club', as were Wing Commander JB Tait (DSO and Two Bars, DFC) and Squadron Leader P Granswick (DSO, DFC and Bar).

Baker's medals were sold with a comprehensive archive of original material such as his flying logbooks. The group went to a London-based phone bidder who beat four other phones and two institutions who left commission bids.

Surprise result

In the same auction, a French Empire Legion of Honour, an early sash badge in gold and enamel, was estimated at £800-1000 but did rather better: taking a hammer price of £37,500.

Silver salver gift to 'Johnnie' Johnson

Cheffins' auction in Cambridge on August 26 includes a silver presentation salver given to Air Vice Marshal James Edgar 'Johnnie' Johnson (1915-2001), the highest-scoring Western Allied pilot against the Luftwaffe and the RAF's officially recognised top-scoring fighter pilot of the Second World War.

The salver, 14½in (37cm) in diameter, 40ozt, was gifted to Johnson on his retirement in 1962 and has an estimate of £600-800. It has a mark of Garrard & Co, London 1962 and is of 'Chippendale' style, the field engraved Presented to Air Vice Marshal J.E. Johnson CB CBE DSO DFC RAF by the Officers of Air Forces Middle East on the occasion of his retirement from the Royal Air Force, raised on four hoof feet, signed to the underside, 37cm in diameter, 40ozt.

Despite missing the Battle of Britain through injury, Johnson's wartime record was 34 aircraft claimed destroyed with a further seven shared destroyed, three probable destroyed, 10 damaged, and one shared, destroyed on the ground. All of his kills were fighters including the formidable Focke-Wulf Fw190 and Messerschmitt Me 109 rather than the slower and more vulnerable bombers. His own aircraft was never shot down.

A portrait of Johnson painted by Leonard Harry Wells in 1945 at Lubeck in north Germany sold for £28,000 at Cheffins in January 2017 (ATG No 2312). Dealership MacConnal-Mason then sold the oil to a private UK buyer and it was donated to the RAF Club in London. Cheffins also sold Johnson's diary for £16,000 in July 2017.

Quality counts if condition is poor

The dictum that class is permanent was borne out in Newbury by prices for damaged pieces

by Terence Ryle

Quality counts – even if it is furniture in the parlous condition of the ebonised centre table offered at Dreweatts' (25% buyer's premium) fine furniture sale on June 30.

If viewers who saw the 2ft 6in (76cm) high table in pieces at the Newbury rooms before the June 30 sale wondered at the £7000-10,000 estimate, further catalogue notes explained all.

The form of the table was to the goût grec design by Thomas Hope (1769-1831) for his Mayfair home on his return from his Grand Tour. The original drawing is now in the V&A and features in Hope's 1807 A Collection of Designs for Household Furniture and Interior Decoration.

Condition problems to the table (catalogued as English or French c.1815) included cracks to the marble top, detached or missing gilt metals mounts, opening joints and losses to flaking gesso.

Auctioneer Ben Brown's confidence in its fundamentals was more than justified when the table sold at £12,000. "A major restoration project but it will be worth it," he said. It could yet be a six-figure piece.

While UK private buying dominated the upper end of the sales sheet (augmented by a high-spending Continental bidder who may have been a dealer), the table was a challenge only the trade could take on.

Class over condition

Another example of how class outranks condition was a c.1735, 5ft 9in (1.76m) tall burr walnut chest-on-chest in the manner of Giles Grendey.

"It's easy enough to find and sell chests-on-chests at £3000-4000 but the quality here stood out," said Brown after it sold at a mid-estimate £11,000. "Selling pieces of real quality is never a problem; finding it is the hard part."

He had amassed sufficient items for this sale. The 408 lots of the 504 on offer which got away took a hammer total of over £1.27m.

Topping the day was a pair of 21in (53cm) globes by J&W Cary, the terrestrial globe dated March 1st 1813 with papers for 1829, the celestial March 1st 1799.

Highlights from Dreweatts' furniture and works of art sale on June 30.

1. Ebonised centre table – £12,000.
2. Library bookcase in the Chippendale manner – £17,000.
3. Chinese Export reverse painted mirror – £38,000.
4. Irish mahogany radially expanding dining table – £22,000.
5. Pair of Regency period Carey globes – £70,000.
6. Padouk wood Pembroke games table – £15,000.
7. Side cabinet painted in manner of Angelica Kauffman – £10,500.

foundation, each globe stood 3ft 11in (1.19m) tall on rosewood pedestal stands and, against an estimate of £20,000-30,000, sold at £70,000.

Georgian globes will often carry a maker's name. Seldom does Georgian furniture come with such information, however.

A c.1820 rosewood library drum table with gilt-brass mounts was catalogued as 'possibly by John McLean' (1770-1825) sold to the Continent at a mid-estimate £19,000.

Typical of the highly regarded Soho and Marylebone firm John McLean & Sons, it featured a 3ft 2in (98cm) diameter top wreathed with ormolu ribbon above the frieze drawers fitted with stylised lion-head hinged handles.

It also had a plaque for Antique Furniture from Norman Adams Ltd, 8-10, Hans Road, London, SW3. A similar table from the Norman Adams Collection had taken a premium-inclusive $35,750 (then about £25,000) at Sotheby's, New York back in 1985, while even a decade ago tables of this ilk could bring close to six figures.

Mahogany furniture 'in the manner of' Chippendale included a c.1760 serpentine commode which went to the Continent at £12,500, a c.1750 pedestal partners' desk at £9500 and a pair of c.1770 folding tables, one for cards the other for tea, at £9000.

Also in the Chippendale taste was a c.1780 breakfront library bookcase. The 8ft 9in (2.66m) tall bookcase had undergone some minor old repairs but was in good condition for its age and doubled the mid-estimate at £17,000.

Large bookcases lost their appeal during the furniture slump but demand was there at Newbury.

Also doubling mid-hopes was a c.1690 walnut example standing a more manageable 6ft 8in tall x 3ft 10in wide (2.03 x 1.17m). Catalogued as 'in the Pepysian taste', it was similar to the 'Pepys Bookcases' made for diarist and naval administrator Samuel's vast library at his London home and which he bequeathed, along with about 3000 books, to Magdalene College, Cambridge, where they now stand.

The Newbury example had old chips, splits repairs and replacements, and sun fading to the front had prompted some 19th century simulated figuring with a dark stain/varnish to some other areas. Restoration work will be needed but the bookcase sold at £15,000.

Easier to accommodate in modern homes was a 4ft 1in high x 3ft 4in wide (1.24 x 1.03m) 'waterfall' open bookcase from c.1820. Made of line-inlaid pollard oak, it required some skilled restoration in parts but against a £6000-8000 estimate sold at £11,000.

Estimates were generally a shrewd assessment of what an improving furniture market will bear but there were surprises.

The biggest unexpected result was a c.1815 padouk, ebony and satinwood crossbanded Pembroke games table. The centre of the top could slide to reveal a backgammon board, above a divided drawer. A similar example (potentially a Chinese export piece) took a premium-inclusive £16,730 at Christie's in 2002 when the market was much stronger.

This Newbury table, with a large split to the top, triggered a trade versus private battle before selling to the latter at £15,000, ten times the lower estimate.

Another surprise was a c.1800 Irish mahogany dining table with a circular concentric extending top measuring 6ft 3in

(1.9m) diameter with six additional leaves. These radially-expanding tables are so much more commercial than traditional rectangular wind-out models.

Stamped to the base R&Js, 14 George St Limerick, it had minor condition problems including imperfectly aligned leaves and some old splits and chips but tripled the mid-estimate selling at £22,000.

From the same north London home was a reverse-painted wall mirror from the third quarter of the 18th century that brought the day's second-highest bid. In a later, possibly fairly modern, George III-style carved giltwood frame, the 3ft 2in high x 3ft 8in wide (96cm x 1.12m) plate depicted figures in traditional dress and various animals in a river landscape.

Estimated at £20,000-30,000, it sold at £38,000. ■

Drury bronzes

From the same north London home as the Chinese Export mirror and an Irish dining table sold at Dreweatts was this pair of bronzes, right, by Alfred Drury (1856-1944).

The figures on marble bases were inscribed A Drury 08 to the 9½in (24cm) tall figure emblematic of Drama and A Drury to the 10in (25cm) figure of Literature.

As yet, neither appears to be recorded in Drury's raisonné but they came with an impressive provenance to the leading figure of the New Sculpture Movement whose commissions included large public works in London as well as such intimate items such as these bronzes. Estimated at £3000-5000, the pair sold at £9500.

Be a devil

More familiar are the late 19th or early 20th century pine and fruitwood devil figures in the manner of the Venetian sculptor Francesco Toso (d.1893). The best examples of these have made some commanding sums in the past.

At Dreweatts, the carved faun (right) standing 5ft 6½in tall (1.69m) including a plinth sold at £12,500 (estimate £7000-9000). It was followed by a marginally taller figure in slightly better condition that went to the same buyer at £7500, the previous underbidder having been presumably bent on owning a near pair.

Relatively little is known about the 19th century woodcarver Toso, who was born in Murano, Venice, to a family of glass makers. However, he briefly found acclaim for his fantastical carved sculptures and mirrors exhibited at the World's Columbian Exposition held in Chicago in 1893 (the year he died).

In October last year a pair of Faustian demons measuring 6ft 2in (1.9m) high took £70,000 at Woolley & Wallis. A closely related pair, formerly in the collection of Italian fashion queen Elsa Schiaparelli (1890-1973), was sold by Christie's in Paris in December 2018 for €145,000.

Mortlake tapestry leads the way

Depicting Bacchus and Ariadne riding a golden chariot drawn by leopards, a monumental Mortlake tapestry, above, led a small but significant textiles section at Dreweatts.

Dated to the early 18th century, the 9ft 9in high x 17ft 6in wide (2.98 x 5.35m) silk and wool work after Pierre Mignard was probably from the Soho workshops of John Vanderbank the Elder. It sold at £29,000, just below top estimate, to the free-spending Continental bidder at Newbury.

Demolishing its estimate was an enigmatic 8 x 11in (20 x 28cm) textile and needlework collage of St Cecilia, pictured left. Thought to date from c.1600, it was housed in a 17th century ebonised frame.

Created using textiles, hand-dotted gilded paper, penwork and small glass beads, the patron saint of music and musicians is shown seated alongside an attendant angel playing a pipe organ and 'donor' figures to the left. The musical score played by the angel is inscribed with the Cantantibus Organica, a Latin text that forms the antiphon of the Vespers on Cecilia's feast day (November 22).

Although the origin of this work is unknown, it would seem to be the work of a gifted child or young person emulating work they may have seen in their household. It sold at £15,000 against an estimate of £2000-3000.

Old Masters on the way back

Despite pandemic factors such as disruption to pre-sale viewings, confidence is returning

by Alex Capon

After a difficult period because of the pandemic, the latest round of Old Master sales in London returned to some kind of normality.

However, activity in the sector still seems to be suffering from what might be described as the art market equivalent of 'long Covid', not least due to ongoing restrictions in terms of travel and the holding of live viewings and events.

The sales in London in early July had a smattering of room bidders who were able to participate but the auctions themselves lacked the sense of occasion traditionally generated at these summer highlights.

Fewer people could attend the pre-sale viewings and, in a market where physical inspection is paramount (despite admitted improvements to the salerooms' condition reports), this certainly had an impact too. The dearth of visitors to London from Europe, the US and Asia this summer, as well as dealers being less inclined to stock up due to the lack of fairs and other selling opportunities, also combined to have a dampening effect.

With all this considered, the overall premium-inclusive total of just over £80m from the sales at Sotheby's, Christie's and Bonhams looked better than may have been expected. Comparisons with last year are difficult due to the calendar being changed back then in favour of mixed-category sales, but the approximate total for Old Masters sold in summer 2020 was around £50m-60m. More comparable is the total for the year before that, July 2019, where the turnover was £98.1m.

It could be said therefore that supply and demand has markedly improved since the nadir just over a year ago, but remains shy of pre-pandemic levels.

At the time this summer's sales took place, however, people seemed generally confident that the market would not only come through the coronavirus intact but also that decent Old Masters would continue to hold their value relatively well.

Sound investments

A number of works that sparked interest at the current series underlined how high-quality or rare Old Masters are still regarded as sound investments, especially at Christie's (25/20/14.5% buyer's premium) which had the best-performing evening sale this time round.

Lively action came for a rare painting by Frans van Mieris the Elder (1631-85).

Works by the artist do not appear regularly on the market but Christie's sold one titled The Drummer Boy back in December for £1.45m. At the latest Old Master evening sale on July 8, another finely painted figurative work, The Music Lesson, emerged from a private British collection where it had remained untouched for almost a century.

Typically small, the 12 x 9½ in (31 x 24cm) oil on panel was an intimate depiction of the artist and his wife, and was thought to date from c.1660, three years after the couple had married. The catalogue mentioned how the work seemed to trumpet their social status with the artist showing himself holding a violin (music and dance was a mark of an upper-class education at the time) and his wife was elegantly dressed in fine clothing and sported a large mouche (beauty spot) to her forehead.

While the painting originally had an arched top, the panel had been altered with extra sections to create a rectangular format. Some speculation surrounded whether the artist himself added these sections or whether they were later additions. However, recent evidence pointing towards van Mieris himself making these changes was referred to in the catalogue (dendrochronological examination of the original panel was available on request).

In any case, this was seemingly the first time a work with a self-portrait of the artist had emerged at auction, making it a significant work academically and an attractive rarity commercially.

With the £700,000-1m estimate

1. The Music Lesson by Frans van Mieris the Elder – £2.9m at Christie's.
2. Saint Andrew by Georges de la Tour – £3.7m at Christie's.
3. Family portrait of the painter Cornelis de Vos and his wife Suzanna Cock and their two eldest children by Sir Anthony van Dyck – £2m at Sotheby's.

4. View of Verona with the Ponte delle Navi by Bernardo Bellotto – £9m at Christie's.
5. Purfleet and the Essex Shore as seen from Long Reach by JMW Turner – £4m at Sotheby's.
6. Still life with a Chinese ginger jar... by Willem Kalf – £1.2m at Sotheby's.

not regarded as excessive, especially following the price for The Drummer Boy, the good pre-sale interest in the work translated into lively bidding on the night. It was knocked down to a phone bidder at £2.9m, the second-highest auction price for the Leiden painter – not far behind the £3.2m for Young woman in a red jacket feeding a parrot that sold at Sotheby's in December 2008.

Artists' records set

Elsewhere at the Christie's sale, seven individual artists' records were set. These included the highest price for Georges de la Tour (1593-1652) when Saint Andrew sold at £3.7m. Although this was below the £4m-6m estimate, it surpassed the €3.6m (£3.27m) previous high which was set at Lempertz in December for La Fillette au Braisier (Girl Blowing on a Brazier) – a sum that had seemingly pushed up expectations of the current picture at Christie's. The work at Lempertz, reported in ATG No 2472, has since entered the collection of the Louvre Abu Dhabi, meaning even fewer works by the artist now remain in private hands.

Indeed, only around 50 pictures in all are known by the great French Baroque painter and, other than the Lempertz picture, none had emerged at auction since 2008 when Saint James the Greater made $3.23m (including premium) at Sotheby's in New York.

The 2ft 11in 19in (62 x 51cm) oil on canvas here had been bought by the vendor for FFr2.7m (£270,000)

Portrait of a Grand Tourist

A Grand Tour portrait that came to auction directly from the family of the sitter was among the most contested lots at Bonhams' (27.5%/25/20/14.5% buyer's premium) Old Master Paintings sale on July 7.

The portrait of James Graham (1761-1824) was painted by Angelica Kauffman (1741-1807) when he travelled through Italy with his friend the Rev Thomas Brand in 1783, the same year he was created 1st Baronet Netherby.

Having journeyed through France and Switzerland, he sat for the picture in Rome in December of that year where Kauffman painted him bust-length and in a blue coat. The picture was fairly well known, having featured in various books including, most recently, Jeremy Black's 2003 publication The British abroad, the Grand Tour in the 18th century.

The 2ft 1in x 18¼in (62 x 48cm) oil on canvas was unlined and estimated at £20,000-30,000 at the Bonhams sale. With its original condition and prime provenance its favour, it was bid up to £91,000.

The price was the second highest at the Bonhams sale where 37 of the 70 lots got away (53%).

The top lot was Head of Christ, on the kerchief of Saint Veronica catalogued as by the studio of El Greco (1541-1614) which surpassed a £10,000-15,000 estimate and was knocked down at £110,000.

at Sotheby's Monaco in June 1991. The price achieved three decades later, therefore, represented a notable return on investment.

Similarly, the sale's big-ticket lot, a view of Verona by Bernardo Bellotto (1721-80), sold below estimate but posted an artist's record and made a major return on its last auction appearance. The 4ft 5in x 7ft 9in (1.33 x 2.35m) oil on canvas from 1745-47 had previously sold for £300,000 at Christie's back in 1971, before then being acquired by member of the vendor's family from dealer Cyril Humphris.

Humphris arranged the work to be loaned to the National Gallery of Scotland where it was hung from 1973 until earlier this year.

While it was clearly a major work by Canaletto's nephew and works of this scale are rarely available, the £12m-18m estimate nevertheless looked punchy. It was knocked down at £9m on the phone.

While it may not have generated the same national headlines as the record Leonardo da Vinci drawing sold for £7.5m at Christie's earlier the same day (see ATG No 2501), it was still the top lot of the week.

Christie's total from its evening sale was £45.3m (including premium) with 46 of the 59 lots selling on the night (78%). This outranked the £17.2m generated at Sotheby's the previous evening where 28 out of 49 lots sold (57.1%).

One of eight estuaries

Sotheby's (25/20/13.9% buyer's premium, plus 1% overhead premium) star lot was a marine painting by JMW Turner (1775-1851) which had not been seen in public since it was purchased by the vendor's father in 1945.

Purfleet and the Essex Shore was one of a series of eight views of the Thames Estuary exhibited by the artist at his gallery in Harley Street between 1807-09. Only two of these works remain in private hands, with the others in museums including the National Gallery of Art in Washington and the National Gallery of Canada.

While the 2ft 11in x 3ft 11in (90cm x 1.2m) oil on canvas may not have had the same commercial appeal of Turner's romantic landscapes or late impressionistic pictures (which can command £10m-plus), any work by the artist is a valuable proposition, especially one of this size and market freshness.

Old Masters finding their feet again

Offered with a £4m-6m estimate, it sold at £4m to a phone bidder. Although the auction house was no doubt hoping the bidding would advance further into the estimate, the price still ranked in the top 10 prices for Turner at auction and was the highest so far for a conventional marine scene.

Drawing more interest was a work by another major name, a family portrait by Sir Anthony van Dyck (1599-1641). Depicting fellow painter Cornelis de Vos, his wife Suzanna Cock and their two eldest children, the 3ft 10in x 3ft 8in (1.17 x 1.11m) oil on canvas had been part of the Cook family collection and kept at Doughty House in Richmond for many years before it was bought by art dealer Nathan Katz in the late 1930s. Based in The Netherlands, the Jewish art dealer was forced to sell the work through an intermediary to Hermann Goering in 1941.

It was later recovered by the 'Monuments Men' at the end of the Second World War and was restituted to the Katz family in 1948. Here it came to auction from a private collection in Jersey.

An early work painted when van Dyck was around 20 years old, it was admired for its rapid and bold brushstrokes as well as being finely preserved. The Sotheby's condition report (written by an external specialist) stated that the paint layer was 'stable and secure and the vigorous and energetic method of paint application is apparent'.

An attractive subject to boot, two phone bidders pushed the price beyond the £1m-1.5m estimate before it sold at £2m – again a sum firmly within the artist's top 10 auction prices.

While the sale was generally hard going for Netherlandish paintings – with an early flower picture by Jan Brueghel the Elder (1568-1625) failing to sell against a £2.5m-3.5m estimate and seven of the 11 works from the Schuybroek collection also left unsold – a lavish still-life by Willem Kalf (1619-93) met with a better response.

The 3ft 4in x 2ft (1m x 83cm) signed oil on canvas was an elaborate, richly coloured, expertly lit and mature work by the Rotterdam-born artist depicting a Chinese ginger jar, silver, a cut melon, bread, a porcelain bowl and a pink rose, all on a table draped with a Persian carpet.

It was in fact one of three near-identical paintings featuring this that put in a notable performance included a winter landscape by Jan Griffier the Elder (c.1645-1718) which doubled its low estimate at £200,000, setting an auction record for the Dutch Golden Age painter, and an early 16th century portrait of a fool attributed to Flemish artist Quinten Massys (1466-1530) which was probably the most eye-catching lot of the night.

Titled A jester: a grotesque head of a fool brandishing a wooden spoon, it had been part of a French aristocratic collection until it was acquired by the vendor from Christie's New York in October 2017. Back then it was catalogued as simply 'Flemish School, 16th century' and sold for $47,500 (£35,770) including premium against a $20,000-30,000 estimate.

The 10 x 7½in (25 x 19cm) oil on paper laid on panel had since been cleaned and had later additions removed. Research had pointed to Massys as the likely candidate both on stylistic grounds and the fact that he had experimented in small character studies during the final decades of his career when he was running a large workshop with son Jan.

Two related works of similar size were identified: one now at the Yale University Art Gallery depicting a corpulent man with a bagpipes and another in The Phoebus Foundation, Antwerp, of a toothless wrinkled old woman.

The jester's clothes and asses ears sewn to the cap of the cloak implied the sitter in the current work was a professional fool (still commonly found in the early 16th century at carnivals and courtly events).

The striking image, unusual subject and sense of rediscovery, not to mention the fact that original works by Massys rarely appear in any case, lent it significant appeal and against a fairly cautious £40,000-60,000 estimate, it drew five keen bidders at the auction. After a strenuous battle, it was knocked down at £420,000 – an 11-fold return for the vendor since it was bought three-and-a-half years before, and a sum that also continued the strong run of prices over recent years for Old Masters with curious or quirky subjects.

The result was another indication that the sector still has its rewards, as long as you have an eye for an opportunity and know what you're doing. ■ composition with the other two now in museums – one in the Musée de Picardie in Amiens and the other painting in the Stedelijk Museum Het Prinsenhof, Delft.

This example had been in the vendor's family for over a century (although was unsold at Christie's back in 1935) and was in an excellent state of preservation. Works on this scale and in such appealing condition are not often available at auction and, estimated at £800,000-1.2m, it was knocked down at the top end of predictions to another phone bidder.

The price was the second highest for Kalf, only behind another similarly sized still-life from the Shickman collection that sold for $2.3m (£1.76m) at Christie's New York in May 2019.

Hoffmann hare inspired by Dürer leaps to £1.02m

While Christie's had by far the top-selling Old Master drawing of the latest series (the £7.5m Leonardo da Vinci drawing of the head of a bear – see ATG No 2501), a good number of other works on paper generated better competition although sold for understandably lower prices.

Among them was this ink and watercolour sketch on vellum, left, by German artist Hans Hoffmann (c.1530-91). It was one of many naturalistic studies made by Hoffmann that were either copies or reinterpretations of earlier studies by his fellow-Nuremberg artist Albrecht Dürer (1471-1528), most commissioned by the Holy Roman Emperor Rudolf II (1552-1612), no less.

The 8½ x 7in (22 x 18cm) depiction of a hare from 1582 was closely derived from a Dürer study made 80 years before (a work now in the Albertina Museum in Vienna).

Having been acquired by the vendor at Lempertz in Cologne in May 2008, where it fetched €580,000 (£461,042), it was estimated at £600,000-800,000 here at the Sotheby's sale titled A Fine Line: Master Works on Paper from Five Centuries on July 7.

It proved a popular lot and was bid to £1.02m, the second-highest auction sum for Hoffmann but the highest for a work on paper.

Overall the sale totalled £5.1m including premium from 68 lots.

THE ART MARKET WEEKLY

Phillis: a pioneering poet

Edition marked the first time a person of African descent had work published

by Ian McKay

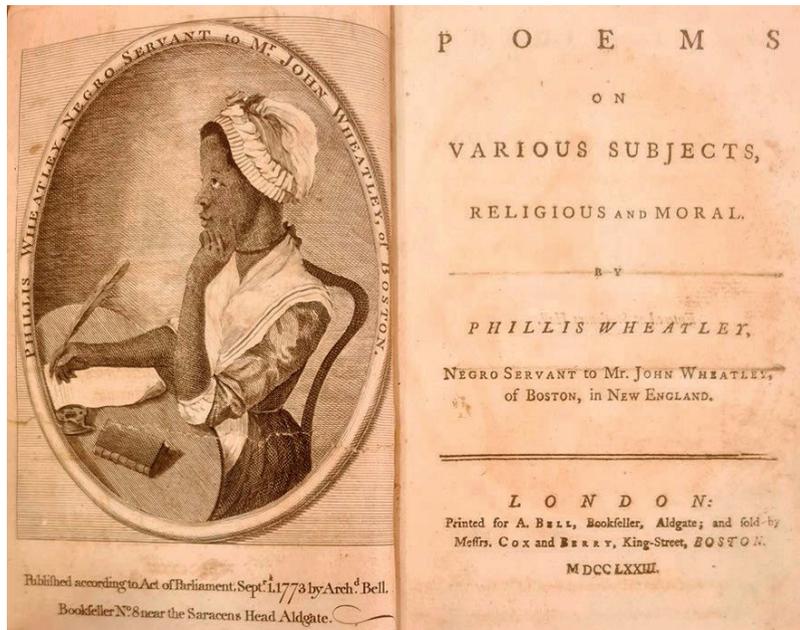

It showed some shortcomings of condition, but a 1773 first of Phillis Wheatley's Poems on Various Subjects, Religious and Moral offered as part of a June 8 sale held by Cotswold Auction Company (22% buyer's premium) sold at £16,500 – a sum only slightly bettered at auction on a couple of occasions.

In the frontispiece portrait the writer is described as "...Negro Servant to Mr John Wheatley, of Boston, in New England", but she is nowadays quite rightly defined in other terms.

As the cataloguer pointed out, with the appearance of this volume Phillis became the first American slave, the first person of African descent, and only the third colonial woman to have her work published.

Born in West Africa, she had been sold into slavery when just seven or eight years old, but the Wheatley family, in whose household she worked, came to recognise her talents and encouraged her writing.

In 1773, aged just 20, Phillis travelled with her master's son to England, where she found a publisher for her poems and made several important contacts. The Wheatleys

Phillis became the first American slave, the first person of African descent, and only the third colonial woman to have her work published then released her from enslavement and she married John Peters, a grocer, but in the following years she lost three children and eventually died in poverty, aged just 31.

This first edition of her poems was published by Archibald Bell, a London bookseller, but as the imprint states, it could also be purchased from Messrs Cox & Berry of Boston.

Dedicated by Wheatley to the Right Honourable Countess of Huntingdon..., this copy is bound in full contemporary calf gilt. It shows some offsetting from the frontispiece to the title, and some internal foxing, but its principal shortcoming, if such it may be termed, is in the pictorial frontispiece, where a tear has been expertly repaired and restored.

The auction house noted that this copy may once have been found at Bowden Hall at Upton St Leonards in Gloucestershire, nowadays a hotel.

Le Carré trio

Sold for £1600 in Cheltenham was something very different: a lot that offered signed copies of three of John le Carré's novels. These were The Honourable Schoolboy, a 1977 first printing in unclipped dust jacket, Smiley's People of 1980 and Single & Single of 1999.

A copy of the Nuremberg Chronicle of 1493, the sale's most highly valued lot, did not find a buyer. ■

Signals and signs of naval battles

Illustrated with 76 hand-coloured flags, a 1794 Signal Book for the Ships of the Line was sold to an online bidder for £11,000 in a June 2 sale held at the Shrewsbury saleroom of Halls (20/12% buyer's premium).

Together with the 83 printed pages with their hand-coloured flags and pennants, as seen in the accompanying illustration, it contained numerous pages of additional manuscript notes on signals and other maritime matters.

In April 1794, on board Admiral George Purvis' flagship, the 96-gun HMS Boyne, this signal book had been presented at his command to Captain James Young of HMS Reprisal – just a day before the British fleet, taking advantage of the chaotic situation that followed on from the French Revolution, seized control of Guadeloupe in the West Indies.

Nightingale arrival

Other highlights of the Shropshire sale included a letter on black-edged mourning notepaper in which Florence Nightingale informs an un-named recipient that she will soon be arriving in the Crimea, but notes "I hope I shall not be so troublesome to you as last time".

It realised £1900.

Sold at £6000 was a Parlophone Records postcard that bore on the back the autographs of the Beatles and was accompanied by a ticket to the 1963 concert at which it was signed.

Battered Britannia

An intriguing condition report that mentions 'water and smoke damage' gives a clue as to what happened to this battered copy of the Encyclopedia Britannica sold in Charles Miller's (24% buyer's premium) auction on April 27.

It was Captain Edward Rotheram's own copy, present in his cabin in HMS Royal Sovereign where it received damage and scorching during the Battle of Trafalgar in 1805 when "an enemy's shot pass'd thro' the shelf".

The frontispiece of the 1797 edition is inscribed by Rotheram stating that this book be "Preserved as a relic of that memorable day with the persuasion that into whose ever hands it may fall that its value & respect may be held in estimation..."

Coming to auction by descent, it sold for £6500 (guide £2000-3000).

Declaration, Bible and Tarzan

A Texas sale of June 9-10 generated six-figure sums for two very different lots: a single leaf from the Gutenberg Bible of the 1450s and a Boston newspaper announcement of America's Declaration of Independence.

The latter, bid to $140,000 (£100,000) in this Heritage (25/20/12% buyer's premium) auction, appeared in an issue of The New-England Chronicle published just 14 days after that historic, July 1776 decision of the Continental Congress.

The leaf from a paper copy of Gutenberg's 42-line Bible was one of those 'Noble Fragments' removed from an imperfect copy by bookseller Gabriel Wells and issued in a 1921 'leaf' book with an accompanying essay by A Edward Newton.

It had been estimated at just $30,000 but at $130,000 (£92,855) would seem to have set a record for one of those single leaves – and by some distance.

Sold at $42,000 (£30,000) was The Oath of a Freeman, a now famous forgery by Mark Hoffman, who as a convicted murderer has spent the last 34 years in a Utah prison. It was previewed in News Digest, ATG No 2495.

Hemingway in advance

Inscribed and signed for a friend, one of just 15 advance copies of Ernest Hemingway's For Whom the Bell Tolls of 1940 sold for $44,000 (£31,430).

In beige cloth as issued, it was a gift to Richard Watts. Like Hemingway, he had served as a war correspondent during the Spanish Civil War and in his later career achieved fame as a drama critic for both The New York Herald Tribune and The New York Post.

Sold for a record $50,000 (£35,715) was a copy of the October 1912 issue of The All-Story magazine in which, over some 131pp, Tarzan made his first appearance in print.

Another 18 months passed before that inspired creation of Edgar Rice Burroughs could be had in book form and launch a staggeringly successful and rewarding cinematic, comic strip and merchandising industry.

On the cover is seen Clinton Pettee's illustration of Tarzan overpowering a lion, but this copy, like other survivors from that original 15c publication, was printed on poor quality paper, and has a number of shortcomings.

It had, however, seen some expert restoration in the past and overall was reckoned by Heritage to be "...in very good condition for this notoriously fragile piece".

Previews Our weekly selection from salerooms

Mallams' Modern Living Sale in Cheltenham on August 18 includes this Model 402 bent wood birch chair by Alvar Aalto (1898-1976), with original label to the underside.

Early works by the Finnish architect and designer of furniture, textiles and glassware were created during a time of rapid economic growth and industrialisation in Finland.

He received patents for innovation in various manufacturing processes, including the bent wood technique shown in this Model 402 chair.

Dating from c.1933, the 2ft 5in (73cm) high chair was made for Finmar, one of the major importers of Scandinavian furniture to the UK between 1934-65.

Estimate £800-1200.

The rarest Scottish provincial town marks, known only from spoons and ladles, are Stonehaven, Ellon and Keith. While a few pieces with Stonehaven and Ellon marks are known, Keith silver has rarely appeared at auction – the last example spoon was offered in the 1990s.

A fiddle pattern teaspoon comes for sale at Lyon & Turnbull's Scottish Works of Art sale in Edinburgh on August 18. As with the two examples illustrated in Jackson's Silver & Gold Marks of England Scotland and Ireland, it is marked JC, probably for John Cumming, a watch and clockmaker in Keith. The town name is built from five oddly shaped letter punches, perhaps made by Cumming himself.

Estimate £1000-1500.

The shapes of things to come

Abstract art associated with St Ives forms the debut show at relaunched Cotswolds gallery

by Gabriel Berner

Dramatically lit above a Windsor armchair, Up and Across by St Ives artist Trevor Bell (1930-2017) is a dynamic work of abstracted shapes in fiery red, browns and gold.

Showing Bell's ability to generate space and emotion through abstraction, the 3ft x 2ft 6in (92 x 77cm) oil on canvas was painted in 1958 when the artist was at the epicentre of British Abstract art in St Ives.

The Leeds-born painter was a key figure in the third generation of artists drawn to the Cornish resort and was described by Patrick Heron as "one of the most important painters working anywhere today".

Bell left St Ives in the 1960s and moved to the US where he became professor of fine art at Florida State University before returning to Cornwall in the 1990s. His decision to go abroad hampered recognition of his work in the UK and, although he was given a solo exhibition at Tate St Ives in 2004, he is yet to have a major retrospective in London.

Up and Across probably formed part of a one-man show at Waddington Galleries in 1958 and was loaned the following year to Bradford City Art Gallery.

Now it is available to buy for a five-figure sum alongside a small selection of other Bell works in a show of Abstract art associated with St Ives in the Cotswolds market town of Stow on the Wold.

Inaugural show

Serious Shapes, which runs until August 31, comprises both canvases and sculpture from the 1950s through to the present day and is the first exhibition to be held at Stow Art House, a newly relaunched gallery founded and run by art dealer Simon Shore.

Shore, who also co-founded international art dealership Trinity House, has long had a passion for British Abstract art and now purely specialises in the area, claiming to have "one of the best, if not the best collections of British Abstract art outside of London".

Stow Art House replaces his previous venture in Stow on the Wold, 1793 Gallery, which focused on Napoleonic art.

A selection of paintings from Serious Shapes at Stow Art House in the Cotswolds each available to buy for a five-figure sum:

1. Up and Across (1958) by St Ives artist Trevor Bell in situ at Serious Shapes.
2. Musical (1999) by Breon O'Casey.
3. Nude Composition in Black Orange and Grey (1959) by Adrian Heath.

“For 25 years the small town of St Ives in west Cornwall was one of the leading places in the world for the production of avant-garde art”

On the exhibition, Shore says: "For 25 years the small town of St Ives in west Cornwall was one of the leading places in the world for the production of avant-garde art. With its focus on the landscape of west Cornwall and beyond, the pictures collated for the Serious Shapes exhibition in some small way tells the story of the revolutionary Post-war, Modern British art world."

Serious appeal

Serious Shapes features around 30 works by artists such as Ben Nicholson, Adrian Heath, Sandra Blow, Terry Frost, Breon O'Casey, Rose Hilton, Paul Feiler and Bernard Meadows alongside others who visited and were influenced by St Ives but did not settle there, like Elisabeth Frink, Alan Davie and William Gear.

Three abstracted oils by contemporary painter Tim

Woolcock, who Shore represents outside London, also feature.

Other highlights include Musical (1999) by Barbara Hepworth's former studio assistant Breon O'Casey (1928-2011), apparently described by the artist's daughter as one of the most important pieces he created, a 1959 oil on paper by Alan Davie (1920-2014) showing the strong influence of Jackson Pollock and Mark Rothko (the pair famously held a party in his honour in 1956 when Davie visited New York for his first American exhibition) and an early William Gear (1915-97) watercolour from 1947.

A fully illustrated catalogue accompanies the show priced at £10 with the proceeds going to City Harvest London, a charity that rescues and redistributes surplus food in the capital to those who need it. ■

Life of a saint comes up at September online TEFAF...

This 15th century copy of the Life of St Radegund is an illuminated biography of the canonised 6th-century Frankish queen Radegund.

She helped the poor and infirm and founded the first nunnery in Europe at Poitiers in western France.

Created between 1496-98, the French manuscript shown here was made for Charles VIII of France and his consort Queen Anne of Brittany.

It was illuminated by the Poitevin miniaturist dubbed 'the Master of St Radegund' and features representations of the monarchs themselves in the illustrations.

Virtual showcase

It is one of 18 works unveiled by The European Fine Art Foundation (TEFAF) ahead of the second iteration of TEFAF Online, which runs from September 9-13 with an invitation-only preview on September 8.

The manuscript is among more than 700 works of art to be displayed

...and chess set sold in 2020 edition

This impressive Baroque chess set by the Danzig amber artist Michel Redlin has returned to the city of Gdansk where it was made over 300 years ago.

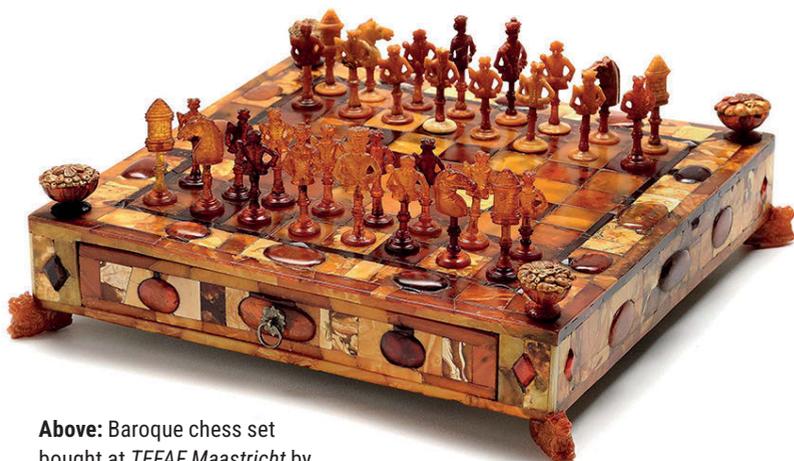

The Amber Museum in Gdansk bought the c.1690 set from Kunstammer Georg Laue at TEFAF Maastricht in 2020 for an undisclosed sum but unveiled it only last month following a major refurbishment.

Until a few years ago, the set was in the possession of the Dukes of Atholl at Blair Castle in Scotland and was one of the last examples remaining in private hands.

According to Kunstammer Georg Laue, it closely relates to another amber chess set at Rosenborg Palace in Copenhagen from the Royal Danish Treasury.

Other comparable examples are held in princely collections at the Green Vault in Dresden amassed by Friedrich August I of Saxony and in the State Hermitage in St Petersburg from the collection of Catherine II of Russia.

During the Renaissance and the Baroque eras, amber was regarded as a substance of mythical origin with magical powers and was known as the 'gold of the Baltic Sea'.

The web shop window

Thousands of items are available to buy from dealers online. Here we pick out one that caught our eye this week.

Attributed to London cabinet maker Thomas Pistor, this William and Mary period oyster kingwood and rosewood escritoire is priced at £60,000 from English furniture specialist WR Harvey & Co.

The 5ft 5in x 3ft 7in (1.65 x 1.11m) piece, which opens to reveal a leather writing surface and an assortment of pigeon holes and secret compartments, dates to c.1690 and belongs to a family of cabinets made by Pistor between 1668-1706 in Ludgate Hill.

"This example, being in kingwood and so perfectly executed with the oyster veneered parquetry roundels and interspersed hearts, could only have been made for one of the finest families in the country – possibly even for royalty," said proprietor David Harvey.

Pistor is ranked alongside royal cabinetmakers John Gumley and Gerrit Jensen, with all three working for Colonel James Grahme, a high-ranking courtier to James II.

5 Questions

Richard Whittle founded Whittle Antik in Oxfordshire earlier this year and offers a range of objects from 18th century oak to naïve folk art, Mid-century furniture, taxidermy and Contemporary art.

Maintaining standards and integrity and responding to how the next generation engages with and embraces the business. It is truly exciting.

3 What is one great discovery you've made?

So many, how do I choose one? Every day in this business brings the opportunity to throw up a 'great' thing. If forced to pick one, when I was an art student I 'rescued' a print by Frank Auerbach from a skip in south London. It was a good day.

4 What is one thing you couldn't do without?

I-phone 11 pro max. Or my dogs. Don't make me pick one.

5 Who do you admire in the art and antiques world?

Edward Godrich of Godrich Interiors, the designer and artist.

We've known each other since we were children and he has always been an inspiration with his taste and style and a sounding board for what I'm doing. No one I know is more honest or throws a better party.

1 How did you get your start?

The son of avid collectors, I studied fine art after school and after worked at Sotheby's in Bond Street before embarking on a career in digital media. I have always surrounded myself with beautiful or practical things imbued with history, be it collecting for pleasure to furnishing the various houses we have restored over the years. I can't ignore a bargain.

It's now become an excuse to keep collecting and working with people who suffer from the same passion.

Summer catalogues: a selection of dealer highlights

Empire building in collage form

This large naïve Canadian appliqué collage comprising 40 individual panels depicts the countries and provinces of the British Empire.

Dated to c.1917-20, the hand-stitched and embroidered fabric measures 6ft 8in x 5ft 9in (2.01 x 1.73m) with the 13 provinces of Canada represented alongside countries such as England, New Zealand, India and South Africa.

The piece is available to buy for £18,500 from London folk art and vernacular furniture specialist Robert Young Antiques.

Tennis player dressed to impress

This c.1880 etching depicts 19th century court tennis player Charles 'Biboche' Delahaye (1825-1906) and is priced at £950 from Grosvenor Prints in Covent Garden, London.

Delahaye was the son of a tennis court keeper from Amiens and a pupil of J Edmond Barre, considered the greatest court tennis player of the 19th century.

Among other career highlights Delahaye beat leading British player Peter Tompkins at Hampton Court in 1848 and is said to have been fond of bizarre handicaps – once playing in the full-dress uniform of the National Guard complete with rucksack and musket.

Willows with inscription

A range of inscribed books, association copies and literary manuscripts make up the latest publication and accompanying exhibition at Henley on Thames bookshop Jonkers Rare Books.

Among the highlights is this copy of The Wind In The Willows by Kenneth Grahame, which is one of only six known presentation copies of the first edition, and is priced accordingly at £75,000.

The book is inscribed to Ruth Ward, the daughter of Sidney and Katherine Ward who were family friends of the Grahames.

Catalogue of Princess Di charity auction

This luxury catalogue was produced in 1997 for a charity auction at Christie's of 80 dresses from the collection of Princess Diana.

The auction, which was held in New York on June 25 just two months before Diana's death, raised over $3.6m for the AIDS Crisis Trust and The Royal Marsden Hospital Cancer Fund. The catalogues were signed by Diana and produced in a limited edition of 250 with full purple leather boards, a sewn-in silk bookmark and illustrated with colour photographs by Terence Donovan, Patrick Demarchelier and Lord Snowdon among others.

This copy is offered for sale at £9750 from rare book specialist Peter Harrington.

"The catalogue was issued by Christie's as an enticement to wealthy prospective bidders," said Peter Harrington owner Pom Harrington.

"Most copies have remained with their original owners as a memento of both Diana and the record-breaking charity auction and, consequently, don't come up for sale very often. This particular copy was owned by an individual who bought several of Diana's dresses at the 1997 sale."

Peter Harrington will donate 20% of the list price of all orders from the catalogue to UK eating disorder charity Beat.

Opportunity is aim of the game

LAPADA tries partnership with a different kind of fair amid latest trade challenges

by Rachel Fellman

From July 23-25, an event dedicated to countryside pursuits such as shooting, falconry and gamekeeping also hosted a LAPADA pavilion for the first time.

This partnership with The Game Fair staged at Ragley Hall, Warwickshire, was a welcome addition to the sparse calendar of higher quality antiques fairs over the past 18 months, with most dealers attending this event as their first in-person opportunity since March 2020.

Would the regular affluent visitors take the time to browse and buy from the 22 LAPADA members who had decided to stall out there?

They were housed in not one but two large tents which some of the dealers felt diluted the impact of the group's presence. However, the weather for the weekend was glorious and the event attracted more than 100,000 visitors in total which provided an opportunity for the antiques sellers to extend their clientele.

On a theme

The dealers had wisely prepared for the fair by ensuring their stands catered to the event's theme. Blackbrook Gallery, for example, filled its stand with paintings of game animals while Langfords enticed customers to buy a silver gun modelled from their personal collection.

Other stands showcased exquisite pieces of furniture, such as WR Harvey, Alexander George and Christopher Clarke, with the idea that they would fit perfectly into a countryside home.

As can happen with a new venture, a few teething issues arose.

Dealers noted unreliable Wi-Fi and a lack of prominent signage while some said they would have welcomed greater publicity in advance. There was also an attempted burglary on the Saturday night, though nothing was taken.

1. Dealer Freya Mitton with her completed stand showing off a variety of Modern British artists. She considered the event to have "a great atmosphere" and that it was a good "new road" for dealers to sell.
2. Sold for £8500 by Mitton was Lake & Fence by Geoffrey Key (b.1941), a 20in x 2ft (51 x 61cm) oil on canvas signed and dated '05 – also signed and dated on the reverse and the back of the frame and numbered GK 1355.05.
3. One piece from a collection of 36 mammoth tooth knives and carvers from Langfords of London – valued at £5900 for the entire service.
4. William & Mary period kingwood escritoire attributed to Thomas Pistor, full of secret compartments and storage, on offer for £60,000 from WR Harvey.
- 5 & 6. Darius and Laura from Westland London prepare their stand for the fair. The firm offered this Aesthetic Movement ebonised mantel clock for £3800.
7. Four 15th century grotesque sculptural heads at the front of the Joanna Booth stall, available for £5800 in total.
8. Some Tiffany glass pieces from M&D Moir, including a Leaf and Vine vase, a Feathered miniature vase and a miniature blue vase, for £2400, £2200 and £1980 respectively.
9. Colombian emerald diamond 18ct gold ring from Plaza Jewellery offered for £6500.
10. Away from the LAPADA tents, auction house Fellows has been exhibiting at the Game Fair for the past five years. Its Birmingham premises are just 20 miles north of Ragley Hall.

ANTIQUES & HIGH

Following a highly successful three months since opening our Bowness on Windermere store, we find that many dealers are finding it a little difficult to grasp the concept of having their stock in three leading high street stores without having to travel further than their local shop.

Opening our Sidmouth store in December 2018 we have gone from strength to strength in the glorious Regency seaside town and due to demand are pleased to announce more cabinets and space with subsidised rates available for those wishing to take advantage of multiple high street outlets. Equally Bowness on Windermere is opening another 500 square feet of sales space providing multiple options for dealers.

This is how it works: take a cabinet in any store, and have another equivalent cabinet or space in either of the other two stores for just ten pounds a month plus one day working in your nearest store. Don't want to work in the store? Not a problem - pay an additional thirty pounds and we will organise it for you!

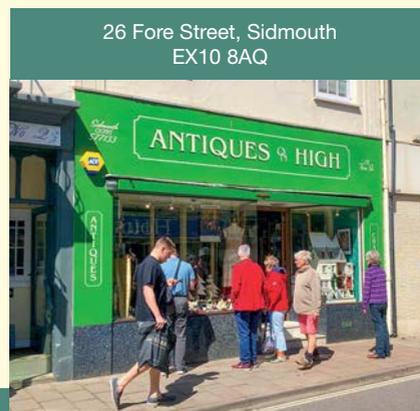

How simple can it be?

We transport all your stock, set it all up for you at no additional cost.

Belgian buyers out in force

Despite a disappointing selling rate, dealer's collection included notable results

by Jonathan Franks

£1 = €1.16

With only half the 266 lots finding buyers on auction day, the sale of the De Leye collection at Lempertz (25/20% buyer's premium) in Cologne on July 15 was far from a white-glove event. Nevertheless, the saleroom achieved numerous notable results for the objects that had been amassed by the renowned Belgian dealer Bernard De Leye over the last four decades.

A familiar face at fairs from Maastricht to Shanghai, De Leye was for several years president of the Belgian Chamber of Experts in Works of Art and of the BRAFA art fair.

His speciality is gold and silver works of art, primarily from France and the Netherlands, generally with an aristocratic or royal provenance, but his taste is eclectic and the auction also included antiques from all eras and some with low four-figure guides.

Magnificent ewer

Many of the top lots went to De Leye's compatriots. Belgian collectors picked up most of the six-figure pieces, including the magnificent silver gilt ewer with matching basin created in 1770 by the Parisian silversmith Jean-Baptiste-François Chéret for the Marquis and Marquise de Montmelas (previewed in ATG No 2499), which was knocked down for €900,000 (£775,860), just shy of the €1m Lempertz was hoping for.

An added attraction were four drawings by Chéret, which documented the route of the craftsman to his final design.

It was a similar story when another Belgian collector purchased the 17th century amber and ivory altar, also previewed in ATG No 2499. It was knocked down for €260,000 (£224,140), slightly below the guide.

Another Belgian buyer paid a mid-estimate €210,000 (£181,035) for a parcel gilt silver drinking vessel in the form of a stag created by the Stuttgart silversmith Johann Jakob Wagner, c.1680.

Lempertz had high hopes for a mid-16th century, intricately carved elephant tusk with gold mounts and set with precious and semi-precious

1. This small, late 16th century portable organ, manufactured in Nuremberg, found a new owner for €95,000 (£81,895) at Lempertz.

2. A late 18th century silver gilt ewer with matching basin was the most expensive item from the De Leye collection, bringing €900,000 (£775,860).

3. This gold and enamel beaker was created in Paris for the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago, held in 1893. It was purchased by a Parisian dealer for the estimated €120,000 (£103,450).

stones. The so-called Eingehurn belonged to Andreas von Thüngen, one-time canon of Wurzburg cathedral. The final bid of €500,000 was, however, not enough to meet the reserve; it remained unsold, as did a highly ornate silver and lapis lazuli hourglass from 1589 which Pope Sixtus V presented to Ferdinand I Medici on occasion of his marriage to Christine of Lorraine. Lempertz had expected to achieve €400,000.

The bidders had a keen eye for the unusual and several positive surprises emerged, such as the €110,000 (£94,830) for a mid-17th century, silver mounted rock crystal crucifix, probably of Austrian origin, which went over the upper estimate and is now part of a Swiss collection.

Highly sought after was a small portable organ, designed to be placed on a table. It was attributed to an unknown craftsman in Nuremberg, working in the last quarter of the 16th century. By tradition it was presented by Countess Marguerite de Lalaing of Berlaymont to the convent in Brussels bearing her name that she founded in 1625. Bidding began at €60,000 and the painted organ found a new owner for €95,000 (£81,895).

A Norwegian collector went way over the guide to secure an early 17th century, south German powder horn. The gilt bronze-mounted stag horn was carved with a nude figure of Lucretia plunging a dagger into her chest. The estimate of €2000-3000 was left behind quickly and the bids continued to €30,000 (£25,860).

From about the same period, but of Dutch origin, was an oval silver relief with the Temptation of Christ, attributed to Arent van Bolten, a silversmith from Zwolle. It more than trebled its estimate at €34,000 (£29,310).

Ivory was the favoured material used by 17th century Flemish sculptor François van Bossuit, to whom a relief with The Flaying of Marsyas was attributed. A collector put up a mid-estimate €170,000 (£146,550) to see off the competition.

A Belgian buyer was able to pick up a 2ft 6in (75cm) high, 17th century ivory Corpus Christi for a below-estimate €165,000 (£142,240). It is considered to be the work of Matheus van Beveren of Antwerp, about whom little is known, other than that he created large format church sculptures as well as small figures and medals.

Among the more modern pieces in the collection was a 22ct gold beaker, designed and executed by the Parisian goldsmith Jules-Paul Brateau and the enamellist Paul Grandhomme for the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago, held in 1893 to celebrate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus.

The beaker was decorated with an enamel frieze of a wine harvest and three large masks in relief: one a faun's head, one a woman's head with flowing hair and one of a panther's head.

After a brief tussle it sold to a Parisian dealer for the estimated €120,000 (£103,450). ■

Above: Théodule Augustin Ribot's tavern scene Cabaret normand from 1875 was knocked down for SFr80,000 (£63,490) at Schuler in Zurich.

Slashed and rejected canvas now worth €120,000

£1 = €1.16, SFr1.26

If Marie Bashkirtseff had her way, the portrait she painted of her cousin in the late 1870s would never have survived, let alone made it to the sale held by Dorotheum (28/25/22% buyer's premium) on June 7.

The artist, who came from an aristocratic Russian family, was born in the Ukraine but lived and worked in France, where she died of tuberculosis in 1884, aged only 24.

She was a prolific painter; her legacy contained over 200 paintings. However, she also destroyed a great number of other works that did not meet her exacting standards. While in Nice, she threw several unsatisfying canvases into the sea.

In or about 1880, Bashkirtseff painted The Reader, a 2ft 1in x 21in (64 x 53cm) portrait of her cousin Dina Babanina. After she was finished, she was unhappy with the result and slashed the canvas with a knife. In 1880 she painted another version of the same subject, which now belongs to the museum in Kharkiv.

Unbeknown to her, Bashkirtseff's mother kept the damaged canvas and after her daughter's untimely death, repaired it provisionally. When it was exhibited in Vienna in 1910 as part of a show devoted to women artists, the cuts were still visible. The portrait was purchased there by Margarethe Stonborough-Wittgenstein, the sister of the philosopher Ludwig Wittgenstein and a famous patron of the arts, and has passed by descent to the Austrian collector who consigned it for sale. In the meantime, it had been carefully restored.

The starting price was €25,000, but the hammer only fell at €120,000 (£103,450).

Naples doubles up

In March of this year, Yves Siebers (25% buyer's premium) in Stuttgart achieved substantial prices for paintings by Polish artists who had primarily trained and worked in Munich.

They came from the collection of a German family of textile merchants, who moved from south Germany to Lodz, south west of Warsaw, in the 1930s and later returned to Germany.

Two further paintings from the same source were the highlights of the auction Siebers held on June 24. They were a matching pair with 14 x 21in (35 x 53cm) views of Naples, painted in 1844 by Iwan Konstantinowitsch Aiwasowski (1817-1900).

The artist had travelled extensively in Italy in the early 1840s, gathering subjects that he executed after his return to Russia in the year he painted the two landscapes that were offered in Stuttgart for €85,000 apiece. One depicted Sunrise over Gulf of Naples with Vesuvius, the other The Gulf of Naples with Vesuvius in Moonlight.

Aiwasowski's paintings are consistent favourites with Russian bidders and they vigorously joined the action in the sale, with bids arriving from Moscow, St Petersburg, the Ukraine and Germany. The pair of paintings is no longer together: the sunrise was knocked down for €270,000 (£232,760), the moonlight at €200,000 (£172,415). Both buyers were Russians, living in Germany.

Landscape memories

One of the surprises at Kinsky's (25% buyer's premium) July 6-8 sale in Vienna was Emil Jakob Schindler's (1842-92) Partie aus Zütphen (Landscape near Zütphen), which is also known as Memory of Holland.

In summer 1875, the Viennese artist had visited the Netherlands with his painter colleague Tina Blau. Both were fascinated by the Old Masters they encountered in museums and galleries, but also by the landscapes that had figured prominently in their works.

The visit had a long-lasting influence on Schindler's painting. In 1882 he executed the 1ft 11in x 2ft 7in (59 x 78cm) canvas offered by Kinsky with a reserve of €35,000.

In the 1880s-90s the painting was shown at several exhibitions in Austria and Germany, returning to Vienna in 1892, where it was purchased by Dr Anton Loew, the owner of a sanatorium in the Austrian capital. It later passed to his daughter Gertrud. After the annexation of Austria in 1938 the sanatorium was forced to close and a year later Gertrud fled with her children to the US, leaving her art collection behind.

Most of the works of art have disappeared; only a handful were returned to Gertrud Loew-Felsövényi's descendants. Thanks to a private agreement between them and the last owner of the painting, Partie aus Zütphen was restituted to the family and consigned for sale. The anonymous bidder who secured it after a prolonged bidding match had to put up €102,000 (£87,930) to win the day.

Caravaggio influence

For the 19th century French painter Théodule Augustin Ribot (1823-91), one of the greatest influences was Caravaggio.

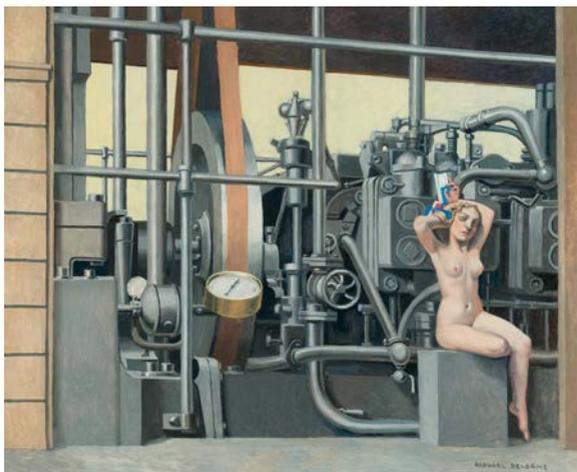

This was apparent in his 3ft 3in x 4ft 3in (98cm x 1.3m) Cabaret normand, a tavern scene with card players from 1875, which caused a stir at Schuler (23/20/16% buyer's premium) in Zurich at the sale of June 14-18. It had been exhibited at the 1878 Exposition Universelle in Paris and the subject was so important in the artist's oeuvre that Alphonse Masson created a lithograph of it, an example of which can be found in the British Museum.

The provenance can be traced back to its first owner, the French collector Monsieur J Debrousse, who bought it in 1878. Cabaret normand was also shown at the Exposition Universelle of 1900, as can be seen by a label on the back of the painting. It subsequently belonged to several other French art lovers before it was eventually purchased by a collector in Lucerne. Since then, it has remained in Swiss hands.

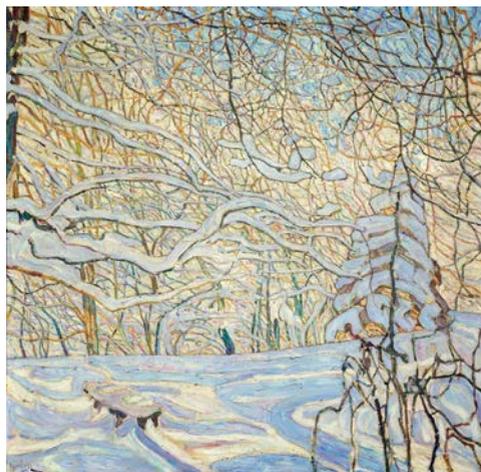

The guide was set at SFr15,000-25,000 but determined bidders saw to it that the final price was SFr80,000 (£63,490).

Above: Raphael Delorme's Nude Woman in the Machine-Room made a record price of €100,000 (£86,205) at Karl & Faber.

Warhol flowers bloom in German saleroom

Over many years, Helga and Walther Lauffs collected American and European art from the 1960s-70s.

Walther died in 1981 and in 2008 his widow donated the greater part of the collection to museums and sold other works of art via galleries or auctions, while retaining many of her favourite pieces.

Helga died in 2015 and this year her executors decided to auction the remaining artworks on June 16 at Van Ham (25/21% buyer's premium) in Cologne. The sale was a great success, with all 72 lots finding buyers.

A considerable part of the final sum was achieved for one single lot: a rare complete set of Andy Warhol's (1928-87) Flowers. The artist based his image on a photo by Patricia Caulfield that appeared in the June 1964 issue of the magazine Popular Photography, which he adapted and recoloured in characteristic fashion.

This 10-part series of 3ft x 3ft (92 x 92cm) colour silkscreen prints was published by Factory Additions in New York in 1970 in an edition of 250. The example in the Lauffs Collection was number 57 and had an estimate of €800,000-1m. The two main contenders, both German collectors on the phone, went way past the guide and one of them withdrew only when the price had reached a substantial €1.7m (£1.47m).

Above: two of the 10 silkscreen prints from Andy Warhol's series of Flowers from 1970; Van Ham in Cologne sold the complete set for €1.7m (£1.47m).

Delorme record

The Swiss collector who consigned a 19in x 2ft (50 x 61cm) painting, Nude Woman in the Machine-Room, to Karl & Faber (25% buyer's premium) in Munich for the sale of July 14-15 will have been pleasantly surprised by the result.

It was painted in 1927 by Raphael Delorme (1885-1962), a member of the Bordeaux School, and was the artist's comment on the dominance of industry over humanity, as expressed by the bonds tying the young woman to the machine.

It was expected to bring €12,000-15,000, but bidders from many quarters went as far as €100,000 (£86,205), an auction record for the artist. It is now part of an American collection.

Collector takes four of five

One of the attractions at Koller's (25/22/15% buyer's premium) July 2 sale in Zurich was a group of five paintings by the Ukrainian Post-impressionist artist Abraham Manievich (1881-1942) which had been in a Swiss collection since 1937.

They were all painted c.1910 and were exhibited in Paris in 1913, soon after the artist, whose works were greatly influenced by Cézanne's later paintings, had moved to the French capital.

Considerable interest came from home and abroad and a determined international collector had his work cut out to secure four of the five paintings.

First up was Neige dans la forêt, which was the largest canvas by Manievich ever sold at auction, measuring 4ft 5in x 4ft 4in (1.35 x 1.32m). It was knocked down for SFr250,000 (£198,410), more than six times the guide. A spring landscape, Vers le Printemps, was just over half the size of the previous painting and was driven from SFr25,000 to SFr90,000 (£71,430), while Paysage lyrique brought SFr130,000 (£103,175), going way over the estimate, as did Ruines Romaines, which was knocked down for SFr75,000 (£59,525).

The collector did not, however, buy the last work on offer, a view of Venice, which went to a Swiss buyer for SFr22,000 (£17,460).

Pocket globes point to Bavarian event

The organisers of the Bamberger Kunst- und Antiquitätenwochen (art and antiques weeks), which run until August 22, thought long and hard about whether to hold this year's event in light of the pandemic.

However, the tried and trusted concept of the event, now in its 26th year, presented an almost ideal way of carrying on as before. As in previous years, dealers in the heart of the historic Bavarian city are presenting their wares in their own premises, offering a broad selection of works of art from the Middle Ages up to the present day, from small collectables to courtly silver and furniture with six-figure prices.

The main difference is that there are no extra events, such as lectures and concerts, but individual accompanied tours can be arranged.

Among the 12 participants are not only Matthias Wenzel, whose company has been trading for over six decades, but also the Contemporary art specialist Galerie AOA;87, which opened less than a year ago.

Among the stalwarts is Walter Senger, who is offering this 3in (8cm) pocket globe (left) with a coloured copperplate terrestrial map, brass meridian and shagreen case, published by James Newton of London in 1817. The asking price for Newtons New & Improved Terrestrial Pocket Globe is €11,800.

Right: large fragment of a Ushak carpet – €57,500 (£49,570) at Rippon Boswell.

Carpet weaves families link

An unusual feature of a large fragment of an Ushak carpet which was sold by Rippon Boswell (24% buyer's premium) in Wiesbaden on May 29 was the alliance coat of arms of two powerful Genovese aristocratic families, the Doria and the Centurione, in the top corner.

The 7ft x 3ft 9in (2.13 x 1.1m) fragment, with so-called Lotto decoration, can be dated to the first half of the 16th century.

The style is named after the Italian Renaissance painter Lorenzo Lotto, who depicted weaves of this type in several of his paintings. Such prestigious carpets were highly prized in 16th century Italy and this example was woven in Anatolia to celebrate the wedding of two members of the patrician families.

This particular fragment was shown at the Exhibition of Masterpieces of Muhammadan Art in Munich in 1910 and published in a book two years later. Since then, it has been in the possession of the same family. Another fragment, which was almost certainly part of the same carpet, belongs to the Silesian Museum of Art and Antiquities, Wroclaw, Poland.

The bidding in Wiesbaden started at €15,000 and a London dealer had to bid €57,500 (£49,570) before the competition gave in.

El Divino delights international bidders

Nagel (25% buyer's premium) in Stuttgart underestimated the international interest for a 16th century painting of Christ Carrying the Cross (right) which came up for sale on July 14.

The 2ft x 20in (62 x 52cm) walnut panel, which came from a German collection, was attributed to Luis de Morales (1509-86), who was known as El Divino, or his studio, and conservatively guided at €10,000-15,000.

Bidders from around the world saw their opportunity and in a seemingly never-ending exchange of bids the price was driven into six figures with the hammer falling at €910,000 (£784,480). The buyer prefers to remain anonymous.

Ruysch still-life

Rachel Ruysch (1664-1750) was an early starter, having been introduced to the secrets of botany and the art of painting at a very young age by her father, an anatomy professor in Amsterdam.

Aged 15, she began her formal training with the still-life painter Willem van Aelst. This marked the start of a successful career; her floral still-lives were highly sought after and cost as much as 500 guilders, a remarkable sum in those days.

The sale at Hampel (29.5% buyer's premium) in Munich on June 24-25 showed that today's collectors still appreciate her work. A 13 x 11in (33 x 28cm) canvas (above right), signed and dated 1640, was a characteristically elegant composition with, among other objects, marigolds, morning glory, a passion flower and insects.

It passed through the hands of dealer Johnny Van Haefthen in the 1980s and was last sold by Sotheby's in 2013. In Munich it was expected to bring €80,000-100,000.

In the end it was knocked down to a European collector for €115,000 (£99,140).

Timekeepers from two centuries apart

Two very different timekeepers came up for sale at Kinsky (25% buyer's premium) in Vienna on July 6-8.

The first was an early 18th century silver-cased coach clock (left) with verge escapement, quarter strike, alarm and repeating mechanism. It was made by Johannes Beithelrockh, who was active in Augsburg from 1700-58. It found a buyer for a mid-estimate €25,000 (£21,550).

Dating from two centuries later was an elegant wall clock (right) by the multi-talented Viennese architect and designer Adolf Loos, dateable to c.1920. The brass case was fitted with faceted glass panels and a 'free-floating' month-going movement, typical for Loos' timekeepers. An unnamed bidder invested a mid-estimate €70,000 (£60,345) to secure their prize.

Summertime in Heidelberg

This large 19th century Meissen plaque with an allegory of summer (left) caught the eye of numerous bidders at Metz (25% buyer's premium) in Heidelberg on June 18-19.

It was painted with a semi-naked maiden wearing a crown of camomile and cornflowers and surrounded by grapes, melons, peaches and a pineapple. Like all the other lots in the auction, the 17 x 12in (43 x 31cm) panel, which was mounted in large gilt wooden frame, was offered without reserve. Furious bidding ensued, which closed only when a Japanese dealer sealed the deal at €28,000 (£24,135).

A corresponding plaque of identical size, painted with the Sistine Madonna after Raphael, was also in demand. It changed hands for €16,000 (£13,790).

Nay is top result on the day

Doppelspindel-Rot, a monumental oil on canvas from 1967 by Ernst Wilhelm Nay (1902-68), topped the evening sale of Modern and Contemporary art at Ketterer Kunst (25% buyer's premium) in Munich on June 18. With international bidding online, on the phones and in the saleroom, it outstripped the €200,000 estimate to sell for €1.8m (£1.55m).

The 6ft 7in x 6ft 3in (2 x 1.9m) painting, left, signed, dated and titled on the stretcher, is one of the artist's last works. It came from the Deutsche Bank Collection and was acquired directly from the artist. The painting will now become part of a Swiss collection.

The original and authoritative sales listing

This is a calendar of art, antiques and general auctions taking place in the UK and Ireland over the next two weeks.

Due to current market conditions caused by Covid-19, readers should expect that some of the live auctions listed here will be held as live online only sales. Such auctions take place behind closed doors and are not open to members of the public for bidding in the room. Bidding takes place online and is also usually available on the phone or on commission.

Readers should bear in mind that regulations and guidelines differ across each of the devolved nations of the UK and are also different in the Republic of Ireland. They are also subject to change at short notice.

Auctioneers are requested to contact us with details of their sales and inform us of any changes.

Contact us at: [calendar@antiquetrade gazette.com](mailto:calendar@antiquetrade gazette.com)

Some auction houses may admit people to their premises to bid in the room though they are not required to do so and you may need to book a place in advance. A number of them may continue with live online only sales for some time.

In all cases you should check with the auction house directly to understand the conditions under which the auction is taking place, including storage arrangements or delivery and collection options that are currently available.

Our online calendar is updated throughout the week, check it regularly to ensure you have the latest information.

We are also listing timed auctions that are being held on the saleroom.com

Timed auctions on thesaleroom.com Bidding made easy

In a timed auction, there is no auctioneer taking bids from a live audience in a room. Instead, all the bidding takes place online.

Timed auctions have an end-time displayed on the lot page. You can bid at any point from when the auction opens to when it closes.

As a bidder, you can enter a max bid – the most you are willing to bid, using our set bidding increments and we do the rest. We will bid intelligently for you, bidding only enough for you to meet the reserve or stay in the lead. Your max bid stays secret in our system. We won't share your maximum bid with the auctioneer, the seller or other bidders.

You'll see your 'current bid' when you log in and view the lot. If someone bids higher than your maximum, we will send you an 'outbid alert' via email, so you can decide whether to bid more. If a bid is placed in the final few minutes before the auction closes for that lot, the time period will be extended by a number of minutes. The auction house can set the number of minutes, usually 10. This is to stop 'sniping' – a practice used by bidders on some other websites whereby they rush to place bids in the last few seconds to prevent other bidders being able to respond before the auction closes.

Artist's Resale Right

Advertisements in Antiques Trade Gazette may mention Artist's Resale Right (ARR). Please refer to the information below for details.

Living artists and the descendants of artists deceased within the last 70 years are entitled to receive a resale royalty each time their work is bought. The right applies only when the sale price reaches or exceeds the sterling equivalent of €1,000 and is calculated on a sliding scale.

Please note ARR is calculated in euros.

Auctioneers will apply current exchange rates.

Royalty	Resale price up to €50,000
4%
3%	between €50,000.01 and €200,000
1%	between €200,000.01 and €350,000
0.5%	between €350,000.01 and €500,000
0.25%	in excess of €500,000

Royalties are also capped so that the total amount of the royalty paid for any single sale of a work cannot exceed €12,500. ARR is exempt of VAT.

Readers should expect that some of the live sales listed in this calendar will be held as live online only events whereby there is no bidding in person. Check with the auction house for details.

Take a different course of action

Venue switch because of vaccination role

by Joan Porter

As Brighton Racecourse is still being used as a vaccination centre, Love Fairs' Donny Mann did a bit of lateral thinking about his antiques and vintage fair due to be held there on Sunday, August 29.

"We decided to move it to our Lingfield Park Racecourse location instead on the same day," he said.

"We're expecting around 150 to 160 stalls – around 110-plus dealers. Of the outside pitches, approximately 40 of them will all likely be pre-booked."

Mann added: "Our June fair at Lingfield went incredibly well. It was not just our first event back following lockdown but our first fair with outside pitches.

"The footfall was excellent as was the feedback from exhibitors and visitors. It was great to be back." ■

Among the exhibitors at the Chelsea Antiques Fair in September is Hatchwell Antiques which is bringing this sculptural-looking Campbell/Stokes sunshine recorder with an adjustable lens, made by J Hicks of Hatton Garden, priced at £2350. Allan Hatchwell said: "This sunshine recorder dates from 1900 and would have been in service with the Metereological Office from registration at that time."

Hoping for sunshine in Chelsea

Acquired six months ago from Caroline Penman by the online selling platform 2Covet, the long-established and highly regarded Chelsea Antiques Fair returns to its spiritual home of Chelsea Town Hall next month for its 70th edition.

It will run between September 21-26, at the same time as the Chelsea Flower Show. A VIP invitation-only preview to the fair takes place on Monday, September 20.

Director Sophie Wood said: "We have 32 exclusive stands with a real mix of exhibitors including dealers in furniture, clocks, Chinese and Japanese works of art, paintings and ceramics and glass."

Dealers include include Morgan Strickland Decorative Arts, Kaye Michie Fine Art and Fileman Antiques.

B2B Edinburgh postponed

B2B Events has confirmed that its antiques, vintage and collectors' fairs held in Edinburgh at the Royal Highland Centre will not be running this year.

"We had made every effort to run the September and November events," said Helen Yourston, director of B2B Events, "but there is too much uncertainty over restrictions in Scotland at the moment so we have had no option but to cancel for the remainder of the year."

Yourston added: "We have offered our stallholders a refund of monies held on their behalf since losing the fair in May 2020. We want to concentrate on next year now and plan to hold four fairs in Edinburgh in 2022."

➤ bzbevents.info

Above: this 1867 watercolour of Brighton's chain pier will need research before being offered to the public, said dealer Jeremy Carson, of the Antiquarian Book Company. "Brighton has always been popular with artists and I'll be taking it to The Keep in Brighton, home of the Sussex Archives, for an expert view before pricing it," he said.

Make a Brighton booking

An update from Jeremy Carson, organiser of PBFA's Brighton Book Fair which will run at Brighton Racecourse (assuming it is not being used as a vaccination centre then... see story above) on Saturday, October 30 – the first in Brighton for more than 20 years.

"Things are going ahead as planned and we expect more to sign up nearer the date," he said. "There's a lot of interest in Brighton in local history and we can capitalise on that.

"The excellent *Lewes Book Fair** is the only large one left on the south coast so Brighton – London-on-Sea – seems a great place to kickstart a new PBFA venture at an out-of-town venue with lots of potential and endless free parking."

* This is the book fair in Lewes run by a local animal charity, with the next planned for October 16 in the town hall.

Beccles event full to the brim

The Beccles Antiques Market held at its new riverside quay location by the River Waveney in the Suffolk town is now fully booked, with 100-plus stallholders for its second market here on Sunday, August 22.

Organiser Kate Lee said: "The antiques market we held on May 2 was one of the first large outdoor antiques markets to be held in East Anglia when restrictions were lifted and was a great success with all pitches filled and good attendance."

This page is our occasional listing of weekly fairs and markets. We have reviewed all the entries that we used to publish in this section pre-lockdown and we have verified with the organisers that the events shown here are taking place. Of course, any such events are always subject to change and are permitted to take place based on national and local authorities' rulings which themselves can be altered at short notice. Therefore we remind readers, before travelling any distance, to check with the organiser that the event is still on and to understand the conditions under which it is taking place.

Fair organisers are requested to inform us of any changes so that the accuracy of the calendar can be maintained.

Fairs & Markets Calendar 10 - 30 August

For a comprehensive and regularly updated listing please visit [antiquetrade gazette.com/calendar](http://antiquetrade gazette.com/calendar)

Although lockdown rules have generally been eased and the fairs and markets sector is returning to business with encouraging levels of stands, visitors and sales, the dates listed here can still be subject to change.

Fair organisers are likely to have Covid-safe rules in place and will appreciate all visitors following them - Track and Trace may be mandatory for entry, for example, and you may be required or expected to wear a face mask indoors and use hand sanitiser.

Fair organisers are requested to inform us of any changes so that the accuracy of the calendar can be maintained.

Antiques Trade Gazette cannot accept responsibility for errors or omissions

Some fairs may be timed entry events where you must pre-book a ticket with an allocated time slot. As ever, readers are advised to check with the fair or event concerned before travelling any distance to understand the conditions under which the event is taking place and to check for any alterations or last-minute cancellations.

Information accurate at the time of going to press (2pm Friday August 6).

General Cataloguer and Saleroom Assistant/Valuer

Diss Auction Rooms is one of the East of England's leading auctioneers; certainly, one of the biggest and busiest. We have 22 specialist departments and sell over 2,000 lots every week, divided between three sale days each week for 51 weeks of the year, with every lot featuring on our web site and internet bidding platforms.

An exciting full-time opportunity has now arisen for an enthusiastic General Cataloguer and Valuer to join our established team. The successful candidate will work across the site: managing private Estate consignments, valuing and preparing lots for sale, and supporting the general auction process. There is a significant need to be self-motivated, to take initiative and to be able to work accurately and efficiently to meet strict deadlines.

Applicants need to have had previous experience of similar work, possess a broad working knowledge of antique, vintage, and modern artefacts, backed by a confident knowledge of market influences and relative values. The role requires a willingness to be hands-on as part of our existing hardworking team, and duties will also include some manual lifting, photography, computer inputting, preparation of accurate condition reports, and hosting of public viewings.

To apply in confidence, or for an informal discussion, please call Matthew Brand, Auction Rooms Manager, on 01379 650306 or email m.brand@twgaze.co.uk. Closing date for final application Friday 27th August.

DARNLEY FINE ART

GALLERY ASSISTANT (PART-TIME)

An exciting opportunity has arisen to join Darnley Fine Art as a Gallery Assistant and be involved in all aspects of running an art gallery. We are located in central London, a stone's throw away from the National Gallery and Trafalgar Square. The gallery has an extensive selection of fine artworks, dating from the 16th century to the present day. This role is a real opportunity for someone with a passion for art, who is keen to gain valuable experience and skills.

Duties will include stock organisation, setting up gallery spaces and art fairs, representing the gallery and liaising with clients, digital marketing, researching artworks, preparing exhibition brochures and much more. This is a very hands-on role.

We are looking for someone with a passion for art, perhaps with a recent degree in Art History or similar. Some experience of working in an art gallery would be an advantage. Strong administration skills are essential. Remuneration will be dependent on experience. The position is currently part-time but with a view to becoming full-time in the future.

Please send your cv in the first instance to enquiries@darnleyfineart.com

Conversation starters on the 'eccentric' Portobello

In reply to Victor Burness, ex-Portobello dealer ('...tat is hiding the arcades', Letters, ATG No 2503).

We all need to start a conversation over Portobello.

Why not invite a local council representative who is sympathetic for a co-operative approach?

Maybe a landlord of one of the big arcades and a couple of dealers who have traded in Portobello for a number of years and a local resident.

During the lockdown many dealers, myself included, were financially helped by the cooperation of council and landlords to allow a delay in paying our rent and to enable us to receive furlough payments through our landlords. When we work together much more may be achieved.

All of us are aware of the high business rates paid by landlords; maybe we could help push the council for a bigger reduction.

Tat appears on many of the stands because it is easier to sell six rings at £15 each and pay your rent, than one ring for a hundred.

Maybe we could work with the cafes, recommend them on our individual websites, and tell customers about this eccentric, interesting, original, foodie, road in London.

Bridget McConnel

Left: the mystery object thought to be a 'pétrin' or kneading trough for making bread.

Handy for those in knead

Re: 'Spout and single support – for what?' Letters, ATG No 2503. It looks like a 'pétrin' or kneading trough for making bread.

The drainage hole may be for removal of excess flour or for ease of cleaning when washing it down, especially since it is oak and presumably rather heavy.

The expression 'être dans le pétrin' dates from the 18th century when these became a household essentials for bread making. It means finding yourself in a sticky situation, one difficult to get out of – rather apt for our present times!

Rosalind Caldecott

Diligence: relying on others leaves you at risk

A lawyer writes:

Leaving client checks to others as an art market participant can be tricky

by Milton Silverman

Dealer A has a very valuable painting and entrusts it to a colleague in the trade – dealer B – knowing that she may be able to sell it.

Dealer B thinks, 'I know just the man who will be able to sell this without much problem.' She picks up the phone to her old colleague dealer C, who in turn does the same thing with dealer D.

Dealer D finds a buyer within a short space of time; one of his long-standing and very wealthy clients.

The sale is swiftly prepared and all looks good for dealers A, B, C and D, each of whom is entitled to their due proportion of the proceeds.

Dealer D begins his customer due diligence (CDD) in accordance with the fifth Anti-Money Laundering Directive [https://ec.europa.eu/info/business-economy-euro/banking-and-finance/financial-supervision-and-risk-management/anti-money-laundering-and-counter-terrorist-financing\_en].

He knows all the necessary details for his important client from their long-standing relationship.

Dealer C takes professional advice on what he should do to comply with his obligations under the directive. He is advised that he must do his proper checks on the intended 'ultimate beneficial owner' of the painting, and duly contacts dealer D about this.

Dealer D then gets rather tetchy, and advises dealer C that he – dealer D – has done all the necessary checks, no problem. Dealer C can just rely on what dealer D has done and not ruffle the feathers of his very valuable client.

Like dealer C, dealers A and B are advised about what they must do, and they contact dealer D – with the consequence that dealer D gets rather irritated.

More than assurances

Such situations have apparently been causing some friction among those subject to the directive, with undoubted tension between the need to get business done and the requirement to do due diligence on the ultimate beneficial owner, making proper enquiries where necessary on the source of funds. What is the position?

The Guidance on Anti-Money

Laundering for UK Art Market Participants [<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/art-market-participants-guidance-on-anti-money-laundering-supervision>] is a complex official document that runs to 109 pages.

However, put simply, an art market participant cannot simply ignore it and rely without more on the assurances of the next dealer down the line.

Quotations from a few relevant parts of the guidance make this clear.

For instance, paragraph 45 details the obligation to carry out CDD measures that 'should enable [participants] to form a reasonable belief that they know the true identity of each customer and, where relevant, their beneficial owner'. Furthermore, the regulations require a participant both 'to identify the customer [and] verify the identity'.

Paragraph 51 goes on to say that, 'where a customer is acting as an agent, the [participant] conducting the transaction has an obligation ... to carry out CDD on the agent and also on the 'ultimate customer', because that participant 'must know '...who 'is ultimately paying for the work of art', and 'must also verify that the agent is authorised to act on behalf of the customer'.

The next paragraph describes the position where, for example, one dealer or gallery wishes to rely on another in the trade. Under the heading 'Reliance', it says: 'to avoid duplication of effort the ... regulations specifically permit [participants] to rely on CDD measures conducted by other[s] ... who are subject to the requirements of the ... regulations or equivalent'.

However, the guidance stresses that the reliant participant who is conducting the sale 'retains responsibility, and is liable for any failure to comply with the CDD obligations set out under the ... regulations, as this responsibility cannot be delegated'.

The reliant participant 'should therefore assess whether it has confidence that the intermediary or agent will have carried out CDD measures appropriately, and should obtain written assurances to this effect'.

In summary, then, it is fine to rely on the next dealer down the line – provided that this dealer is subject to the same stringent regulations as you now are.

However, if the dealer on whom you are relying fails to follow the due diligence process properly, and it turns out that you and they have received laundered drug money, you will both be exposed to criminal prosecution.

So it is not quite as easy as some have supposed to rely on the next dealer down the line.
