Ukers User Guide

SECTION ONE: GLOBAL DIRECTORY

(By Country) Contains a listing of all companies by country classified as one or more of the following business types: Coffee Agent/Broker; Coffee Association/Organization; Coffee Exporter; Coffee Importer; Coffee Roaster; Speciality Coffee Roaster; Coffee Decaf Processor; Soluble Coffee Manufacturer; Speciality Coffee Importer. Tea Agent/Broker; Tea Association/Organization; Tea Exporter; Tea Importer; Tea Packer; Speciality Tea Packer; Tea Decaf Processor; Soluble Tea Manufacturer; Speciality Tea Importer. US companies are listed under their states in the USA section.

If you don't know the country where a company is located, look it up in Section Three (Contact Information).

SECTION TWO: SUPPLIES & SERVICES —

(By Category) Contains an alphabetical listing of supplies, services, machinery and equipment offerings divided by category. Under each supply listing are the companies (by name) that provide that particular product or service.

For an overview of all the supplies, services, machinery and equipment listings, turn to the Supplies and Services Index on page 55.

To find the contact information for a supplier, turn to Section Three (Contact Information), where all suppliers are listed alphabetically by company name.

SECTION THREE: CONTACT INFORMATION

Contains an alphabetical listing by company name of contact information for all the companies appearing in UKERS 2022. This information includes address, telephone number, fax number where applicable, email address, web address, personnel and branch offices.

SECTION FOUR: FACTS, FIGURES & FINDINGS

Contains articles re-printed from the useful and popular Facts, Figures & Findings and Sustaining the Chain sections of Tea & Coffee Trade Journal – including statistics, market data and trends from key areas of the tea and coffee industries.

SECTION FIVE: GLOSSARY OF COFFEE & TEA TERMS

Contains a list of tea and coffee related terms and words, fully updated for 2022. Each entry has a full definition or explanation and is listed alphabetically for easy reference. This Glossary, along with the separate section for tea and coffee tasting terminology, is a valuable tool in keeping up with the ever-changing vocabulary within the tea and coffee industries. For foreign terms, the country of origin is noted in parentheses next to the word.

THE ICON RETURNS.

1949

Ever since the first Constanta made its world debut in 1949, it constantly sets new standards. Now, we continue this proud tradition with a new machine! A machine, that always comes with a modular set up, a faulty bag ejection and much, much more...

Global Cannabis-Infused Drinks Market to Expand 24x by 2031

‘Beginner’ cannabis users, that is, those drinking CBD products for the first time and want a regulated amount, are driving increased demand for cannabis-infused beverages.

The global cannabis-infused drinks market, including coffee and tea beverages, is projected to surpass USD $6 billion. According to projections by Dublin, Ireland-based market research firm Fact.MR, which wrote the report, expanding recreational and therapeutic usage of cannabis is likely to propel demand for cannabis-infused drinks in the forthcoming decade, expanding at around 38 percent CAGR between 2021 and 2031.

The increasing scramble to legalize recreational and medicinal usage across key countries is heightening prospects.

From 2016 to 2020, sales of cannabis-infused drinks expanded at a 15 percent CAGR, hitting USD $250 million by the end of the period. While Covid-19 temporarily impeded expansion, unceasing efforts to incorporate low-grade cannabis in food and beverage products amid legal sanctions sustained demand to a large extent.

Various health benefits, including improved sleep patterns, reduced weight gain, and relief from depression and anxiety, are likely to drive global cannabis beverage growth throughout the forecast period. Furthermore, the growing use of cannabis for the treatment of neurological disorders, epilepsy, cancer, and pain management is projected to boost demand.

Key takeaways from the market study include:

- CBD-infused drinks to generate three out of five sales until 2031;
- Non-alcoholic cannabis-infused beverages to account for 50 percent of total consumption;
- US market for cannabis-infused drinks to surge at a CAGR of around 10 percent;
- A market share of nearly 40 percent is projected for the Europe cannabis-infused drinks landscape;
- India is likely to register an expansion rate of eight percent in value CAGR terms until 2031;
- The bulk of cannabis-infused drinks sales to occur across online platforms;
- The global market for cannabis-infused drinks to add 24x market value by 2031.

“Beginner cannabis users who want a discreet, accessible and regulated amount of cannabis are driving increased demand for CBD-infused cannabis drinks,” noted a senior research analyst with Fact.MR.

Dubious Competitive Landscape

Cannabis-infused beverage businesses have entered the market to meet the rising demand for cannabis-infused goods. However, due to the extreme uncertainty surrounding cannabis sales and use rules, the competitive environment of the cannabis-infused beverages industry remains tumultuous.

Using new technology and trends in the mainstream beverage industries to develop distinctive variants is expected to be a significant strategy for manufacturers seeking a competitive edge. 📺

Time to Brew

Just What You Need

The UKTIA's new Smart Boil Campaign wants tea lovers to boil only the amount of water needed for their cuppa.

New research shows how the humble cuppa could help save the planet. And the good news is that Brits will also save cash, time, and enjoy a better brew every time they have a cup of tea.

The new research commissioned by the UK Tea and Infusions Association (UKTIA) reveals that simply altering the way UK consumers measure the water needed for a cup of tea can help cut 618 tonnes of carbon emissions – the equivalent of 1.5 million miles in journeys in the average family car – and reduce energy bills by £455,764 per day across the United Kingdom as a nation.

With tea being the UK's favourite hot drink, and a staggering 100 million cups consumed each day, the sustainability experts at Carbon Intelligence, a sustainability data and consulting firm (carbon.ci), which worked with UKTIA to carry out this research, have calculated that if everyone in the UK made this easy change, the country would collectively save 2,649,792 kWh per day of electricity – enough to provide all the energy needs for 74.7 households for a year.

"It's very easy to feel powerless when faced with the enormity of climate change, but as our research shows if we all make small changes it can add up to a significant impact – and real change," said Dr Sharon Hall, head of the UKTIA. "That's why we are launching the Smart Boil Campaign to spread the word on this simple and achievable step that will deliver immediate benefits – for consumers and the planet."

She noted that the Smart Boil campaign hits one of the nine goals prioritised by climate and environment experts at Imperial University. "Reducing energy consumption is number five on their list of important changes we can all make – behind cutting back on flying and leaving the car at home."

The Smart Boil initiative aims to make the UK's tea-loving Brits 'Smart Boilers'. That means getting everyone to boil only the amount of water needed, once, and if people can, switch to renewable energy in their own homes.

"The independent research we commissioned from Carbon Intelligence shows that we all have the power to make a real difference. In fact, for every mug of tea boiled, using exactly the amount of water needed would save per day: 0.026 kWh in electricity, 0.5p on energy bills and 0.000006 tCO₂e (tonnes of greenhouse gases)," Dr Hall explained, adding, "and if we only boiled the water we needed and all the electricity we used was generated from renewable sources, it would save 2,649,792 kWh of electricity per day (data based on 100 million cups of tea per day using the exact amount of water per boiled cup of tea) – that's 1,236 tonnes of greenhouse gases – the equivalent of planting 20,438 seedlings over 10 years or switching 46,846 incandescent lightbulbs to LEDs."

UKTIA members including PG Tips, Pukka, Tetley, Twinings and Yorkshire Tea all support the new Smart Boil campaign and will be encouraging consumers to boil 'just what you need' when making your favourite cuppa.

Reducing greenhouse gases will require action on all fronts, and this should be led by government's around the world. "The real strength of our Smart Boil Campaign is that everyone can do their bit. It doesn't involve any major changes or having to give up anything we enjoy. In fact, quite the opposite," said Dr Hall. "Boiling only the amount of water you need and only once will reduce energy bills and improve the taste of your tea."

In fact, according to Dr Hall, to elicit the best flavour out of the tea, the water must contain oxygen to 'energise' the leaf and extract all the character of the tea. When the kettle is topped up, water is repeatedly re-boiled which drives out the oxygen and makes the tea taste dull. So, using the right amount of freshly drawn water will deliver a better-tasting cup of tea.

For more information, visit the UK-TIA website: tea.co.uk. ☕

Smart Boil Facts

Every day in the UK consumers drink 100 million cups of tea. If all were by made boiling only the amount of water needed, it would save per day:

- 2,649,792kWh of electricity per day
- £455,764 in energy bills per day
- 618 tCO₂e in greenhouse gas emissions per day

That's the equivalent of:

- All the electricity needs from 112 average homes for a year
- Emissions from 134 passenger cars for a year
- 1,553,156 miles in passenger car journeys a year

Smart Boil and Carbon Intelligence's calculations are based on these underlying assumptions:

- 0.106 kWh energy required to heat one litre of water in a kettle (with 85 percent efficiency)
- One mug of tea is 250ml – on average, people will boil twice as much water than is needed when making tea
- Each kWh of electricity consumed costs 17.2p
- Water is boiled from room temperature (21°C) to boiling temperature (100°C)

Gorilla Coffee Alliance Aims to Improve Livelihoods & Protect Wildlife in the DRC

The new Gorilla Coffee Alliance was founded to improve rural livelihoods and wildlife conservation in the Democratic Republic of the Congo by supporting sustainable agriculture and enterprise to reduce threats to the endangered Grauer's gorilla.

The newly formed Gorilla Coffee Alliance was established to enhance rural livelihoods and wildlife conservation in the Democratic Republic of the Congo by supporting sustainable agriculture and rural enterprise to reduce threats to the critically endangered Grauer's gorilla.

The eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) has seen years of economic and political turmoil, which have impacted the well-being of local communities and threatened the unique biodiversity of the area. Now, a new partnership will promote better livelihoods for local farmers and protect the region's endemic and critically endangered Grauer's gorilla.

The Gorilla Coffee Alliance was launched on 19 October by the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), Nespresso, Olam Food Ingredients (OFI), TechnoServe and the Wildlife Conservation Society, Congolese social enterprise, Asili, and international non-profits. Over five years, this initiative will partner with 8,500 farming households to improve their coffee production and sales and reduce poaching and deforestation around Kahuzi-Biega National Park in DRC's South Kivu province.

"USAID's launch of the Gorilla Coffee Alliance is a critical milestone for the US Government's partnership with the Congolese people and the product of over a decade of USAID's investment in working alongside Congolese farmers to replant coffee trees in a conflict-ravaged region," said USAID DRC mission director Paul Sabatine. "Revitalising DRC's coffee sector makes me proud to co-invest alongside Nespresso and OFI, particularly given our common desire to promote sustainable livelihoods by protecting Congo's wildlife and natural resources."

Kahuzi-Biega National Park in South Kivu, DRC, is a UNESCO World Heritage Site and one of the few remaining habitats of the world's 6,800 estimated remaining eastern lowland or Grauer's gorillas. But political unrest, population growth and the absence of sustainable economic opportunities in the area have put the national park and the wildlife it protects at risk from illegal logging, poaching and mining.

The Gorilla Coffee Alliance (GCA) aims to address this challenge by helping local families to establish environmentally sustainable ways to earn income, improving access to essential health services, and working with community institutions to become advocates for conserving the national park. The GCA will improve total farm productivity to support farmer revenues and protect long-term soil health, biodiversity, and the vital ecological function of one of the world's largest forests.

"The greatest force for conservation is a local community that is invested in protecting its natural resources," said TechnoServe CEO and president William Warshauer. "We are excited to join these extraordinary partners and apply TechnoServe's long experience supporting coffee-growing communities to help the people of the Kahuzi-Biega National Park area create healthy communities, sustainable economies, and a flourishing ecosystem.”

The Importance of Coffee

The environmentally sustainable production of coffee is central to this vision. South Kivu’s climate is well suited for growing high quality coffee, and its sales in specialty coffee markets have increased in recent years. Around Kahuzi-Biega National Park, however, farmers struggle to access the training, high quality coffee seedlings and shade trees needed to improve their production; and many local coffee washing stations do not have enough capacity or technical ability to adequately process locally grown coffee.

“We are incredibly proud to be joining this partnership to breathe new life into the region’s coffee industries and communities, which will foster vital economic growth while preserving local ecosystems in Kivu,” said Guillaume Le Cunff, CEO of Nespresso. “Through our Reviving Origins program, we have been working to successfully revitalise production in several challenged coffee producing regions around the world since 2019, and we’re excited about the important projects underway in the DRC. We strongly believe that coffee can be a force for good, because it can help to shape communities and preserve landscapes, leaving a positive impact on the lives of people and nature.”

Managing director and CEO of OFI’s coffee business, Vivek Verma, said that the alliance will be a real game changer for a region that has faced conflict, poverty and natural disaster. “Building on years of close collaboration with local farmers, we will help Kivu to build its reputation for exceptional coffee and make a real difference to long-term farmer revenues. But our vision goes far beyond coffee,” he shared.

Verma added that “with the help of our partners, we will bring innovation to local farming systems, helping to improve lives and livelihoods, regenerate soils, and protect precious biodiversity in the world’s second-largest tropical forest. And using the sustainability insights platform, AtSource, we will be able to monitor the progress we are making towards the desired social and environmental impact.”

The Gorilla Coffee Alliance, which is made possible through USAID in partnership with Nespresso’s Reviving Origins program and Olam, aims to revitalise coffee production in regions impacted by adversities ranging from climate change to conflict. The GCA will train farmers in regenerative agriculture and help local entrepreneurs and farmers set up nurseries that provide high quality coffee and shade-tree seedlings. It will also work with coffee washing stations to enable them to access finance and technical assistance that will improve their capacity to process coffee at quality levels demanded by Nespresso and other specialty markets.

Participating washing stations are expected to double their output by 2026.

Taking a holistic approach, the GCA will also work with local families to improve community resilience, health and engagement. The initiative will build the entrepreneurial skills of young and Indigenous people, particularly in non-farming households, so they can start environmentally sustainable businesses. It will also train families in communities surrounding the forest to enable them to improve their nutritional status and financial literacy and plant kitchen gardens.

Through the Asili platform, the GCA will improve access to health clinics and clean water points. Lastly, it will help to mobilise existing community governance structures to support conservation and combat poaching, logging and mining.

Deo Kujirakwinja, the technical director of the Wildlife Conservation Society in the DRC, added, “Engaging the community surrounding Kahuzi-Biega National Park is critical to protecting Grauer’s gorillas. The Gorilla Coffee Alliance will help ensure a future for these great apes, which are a key part of the Democratic Republic of Congo’s natural heritage.” 🍵

The climate in South Kivu, DRC is well suited for growing high quality coffee.

Coffee Customisation is Key

Coffee drinkers love to personalise their drinks – whether they are switching the creamer from dairy to a non-dairy alternative, changing the temperature or altering the sweetness, people like to make their drink their own.

A new survey from Oregon-based roaster retailer Dutch Bros finds that 54 percent of coffee consumers surveyed have a usual coffee shop they visit at least once a week. While 30 percent claim loyalty to their usual drink, 65 percent of respondents are likely to try a drink recommended by their barista. But when it comes to that actual drink, customisation is key. The survey also reveals that:

- When they swap the dairy milk in their drink, Americans' favourite substitutions include almond (48 percent) or coconut (43 percent) milk.
- To make their drink more interesting, people are most likely to add whipped cream (39 percent), honey (38 percent) or vanilla extract (37 percent).

As consumers' coffee tastes become more sophisticated, the desire to tailor their drinks also increases, as seen in the infographics below.

Disney is ‘Mad About Tea’

The Kent & Sussex Tea & Coffee Company has analysed Disney’s classic animated films frame by frame to assess its ‘obsession with tea.’

All graphs are courtesy of the Kent & Sussex Tea & Coffee Company.

The study looks at depictions of tea around the Disney world, the characters and films most obsessed with tea. It finds that there are 64 'tea' mentions across 12 Disney classics. For example, in Alice in Wonderland alone, tea is mentioned 24 times. However, despite having a teapot and teacup as main characters, Beauty and the Beast does not even place in the top five for length of tea-specific scenes. The Kent & Sussex Tea & Coffee also matched each Disney film with what the company believes is the 'perfect tea.'

'Tea time' is a core plot-point of many British-based Disney films such as 101 Dalmatians, Mary Poppins and The Sword in the Stone. In fact, half of Disney's top ten 'tea-mad' movies are based in Great Britain. France-based films, like Cinderella and Beauty and the Beast, feature the second most amount of tea, with three entries in the top ten. The United States comes third, with entries like Toy Story and The Princess and the Frog.

The only other regions with distinctive Disney tea-scenes are China – the cultural home of tea – and West Africa. Kent & Sussex Tea & Coffee notes that this could be reflective of Disney's historic lack of diversity (the studio has been working to change that in recent years).

Which Films are Tea Obsessed?

Mary Poppins, Alice and her sister, and Nanny in 101 Dalmatians all remind the others it is 'tea time' or 'time for tea.' Thus, Kent & Sussex Tea & Coffee was able to quantify just how much time in these Disney films is taken up by drinking tea.

Alice in Wonderland has the longest tea scenes, generating more than 12 minutes (15.5 percent of the film) of hot-tea content. The Mad Hatter's tea party is the most iconic, but the Mad Hatter also lays out an impressive table of tea for the Queen of Hearts and Alice falls through a hot teacup in one of the final scenes.

The film with the second longest tea scenes is Cinderella, with six minutes (8.5 percent of the film) devoted to 'tea time.' One of Cinderella's main duties is serving tea to the household, yet Lady Tremaine (the wicked stepmother) is the only character

Disney Tea Matching

What tea do our experts recommend to get into the mood of these classic movies?

Beauty & The Beast

The perfect complement to this film is the delicate Rose Congou Superior 'Emperor Grade' Tea, which uses real rose petals and is fit for nobility.

Mulan

Pair this movie with Mountain Dragon Green Tea, which was all the rage in the Chinese imperial courts.

Alice in Wonderland

For a traditional and fragrant tea with a quirky spin, treat yourself to a pot of 'Earl Grey and 'Liquorice Tea – the perfect unbrithday present and accompaniment to the film.

Mary Poppins

Prim and proper, Mr Banks and Mary Poppins would approve of nothing less than an 'English Drawing Room Scented Tea. Spit spot!

Sword in the Stone

Merlin may be ahead of his time, but black tea was not yet introduced into Britain in the Dark Ages. Get transported back in time and sip a 'Traditional Linden Tea – a favourite of both medieval kings and village witch doctors due to its medicinal benefits.

Sleeping Beauty

What could be more fitting than 'Cinnamon Tea, which was both popular in Medieval Europe, and is nature's spell for a restful night's sleep.

Toy Story

Buzz does the hard work for us, and explicitly specifies the tea as 'Darjeeling. Who knew plastic toys had such refined palates?

to take a single sip of tea throughout the entire film.

In third place is Mary Poppins, with nearly four minutes (2.5 percent of the film). Mary Poppins has the most characters who interact with tea of any Disney movie, but the most pre-occupied isn't Mary Poppins, rather it is Mr Banks.

Which Characters are the Biggest Tea Fanatics?

Using the top five tea-mad movies, Kent & Sussex Tea & Coffee also revealed who Disney's ultimate tea connoisseur is by adding up the number of times characters poured, talked about or drank tea.

Alice in Wonderland's Mad Hatter topped his companion, the March Hare to the title of Disney tea fanatic. The March Hare mentions 'tea' more than any other Disney character and consumes just as much tea as the Mad Hatter. However, the March Hare was far less hospitable – pouring less than half the cups.

In third place is Mary Poppins' Mr Banks – tea is central to his routine and identity. He pours three cups, drinks once, and mentions tea five times (fans of the movie will recall that not even cannon fire comes between Mr Banks and his morning cup of tea). Rounding out the top five is Mulan, who although she doesn't actually drink tea in Mulan, pours it four times and mentions it once, while Merlin, in the Sword in the Stone, also never drinks any tea but pours it twice and mentions it three times. ☕

Disney Tea Scenes

We examined 25 classic Disney 'Tea Scenes', where characters drink, pour or talk about Tea.

☕ = The number of tea cups represents the number of 'tea scenes' in each movie.

Alice in Wonderland

No movie is as potty about tea as the wonderfully bizarre 'Alice in Wonderland'. Tea is mentioned a staggering 24 times by the characters, and even has the very last word!

Beauty and the Beast

Chip and Mrs Potts, are all talk and no action: only two cups of tea and poured and sipped over the course of the film.

Mulan

Only the Mad Hatter 'plays mother' more than Mulan. Although she has plenty of practice, she is definitely Disney's most clumsy tea-pourer (which doesn't impress the Matchmaker).

Mary Poppins

Did you know that the actor who plays Uncle Albert, who hosts the wacky ceiling tea-party, is also the Mad Hatter in Alice in Wonderland?

Sword in the Stone

'Hokey pokery wockley wock' – Arthur is left spellbound by Merlin's enchanted tea-set when he literally drops in for tea.

101 Dalmations

Forget her taste for puppy-love, our first real-life Cruella must be wicked when she turns down Nancy's selection of tea and cake!

Cinderella

Poor Cinderella serves lots of tea that no one even drinks. At least Gus and Jay make great use of the tea-set and try not to land in hot water!

The Princess and the Frog

The Princess and the Frog's world is fuelled by coffee, not tea (although Tiana and the Prince enjoy a super cute date perched on very fine tea-cups).

The adventures of Ichabod and Mr Toad

This quirky film contains The Wind in the Willows with The Legend of Sleepy Hollow. Join Ichabod and Mr Toad for a spot of tea (just don't spill your teapot like Ichabod).

Sleeping Beauty

Two-fisted fairy-meeting: the fairy godmothers magic a tea set from thin air (which in our opinion, is an ultimate superpower).

Toy Story

In this film, Buzz Lightyear is taken to 'Jiffar-Tia and beyond' when he is repaid into a tea-party by Andy's little sister.

Tarzan

In Tarzan, the tea-set equaled to embersness by the jungle exchangers to none other than Mrs Potts, Chip and the tea set from Beauty and the Beast.

Glossary of Coffee Terms

Abbreviation Key

Fr. = French

L. = Latin

Port. = Portuguese

Sp. = Spanish

q.v. = Latin, quod videas, literally, "which see" about. The word "about" in a coffee contract in connection with quantity, permits a variation of 5% more or less. It is supposed to be an accidental variation and not one resorted to take advantage of market conditions.

Abyssinian. (officially, Ethiopian). Arabica coffee produced mainly in the provinces of Djimmah, Sidamo, Lekampti, and Saio in western and southwestern Ethiopia from wild trees.

acerbic. A taste fault in brewed coffee giving an acrid and sour sensation on the tongue as a result of excessive heat during the ageing process after brewing.

acidity. A term used to describe a coffee in which this desirable cup characteristic occurs. This characteristic is particularly desirable in Brazils and is found in most Milds. Colombians have both acid and body. It is natural in Mochas. An acidic flavour is sharp and pleasing to the taste as opposed to sour or fermented, or caustic or bitter as chemical terminology implies. It is never found in old coffees. The term "acid" used by the coffee trade does not refer to a greater amount of actual acid but to coffee that is smooth and rich and has verve, snap, life and thinness compared to a sweet, heavy, old, and mellow flavour.

acrid. Secondary coffee taste related to soury. A sharp, bitter, perhaps irritating taste. Caused by high levels of sour acids. Typified by unwashed Rio coffee from Brazil.

afloats. Term applied to coffee on ships en route to port of destination.

agents. Firms in consuming countries representing exporters in producing countries. They do not take ownership but sell to roasters or others for a commission paid by the shipper.

agribusiness. Agribusiness is the business sector encompassing farming and farm-related commercial activities. The business involves all the steps required to send an agricultural good to market: production, processing and distribution.

agronomy. Agronomy is the science and technology of producing and using plants for food, fuel, fiber and land restoration. Agronomists conduct research in crop rotation, irrigation and drainage, plant breeding, soil classification, soil fertility, weed control, and other areas.

agroforestry. Agroforestry is the intentional integration of trees and shrubs into crop and animal farming systems to create environmental, economic, and social benefits.

alqueire (Port.). Old measure of capacity of liquid and dry measure equivalent of 13.8 kilos. An alqueire of coffee cherries weighs 50 kg. It is also a land measure, 24,000 sq meters — equivalent to 6 acres.

Americano. An Americano is made by pouring a shot of espresso into a coffee cup and then adding hot water. Americanos can be made with one, two, or even three shots of espresso. It has been said that the name dates to back to World War II when Americans ordered coffee in Italian cafés. Because they wanted coffee that was similar to what they drank back home — not the standard Italian espresso — they would have the baristas add hot water to dilute it.

Ankola. Coffee produced in the district of Ankola, Sumatra, Indonesia. Considered one of the finest coffees grown.

antestia. Antestia bugs are major pest of Arabica coffee in East African countries that can cause up to 40% of coffee cherry loss. They hide in berry or flower clusters and cause severe damage to green berries by feeding and indirectly by the transmission of a fungus (Nematospora coryli), which causes rotting of beans. The bug also attacks flower buds and shoots causing blackening of flower buds with no flower/fruit set. No visible surface marks/scars or wounds on berries are noticeable until seen on drying beds as "zebra" beans. "Zebra" beans produce poor quality coffee. Antestia bug also is suspected to facilitate the entry of microbes that are associated with potato taste defect in coffee.

Arabigo (Sp.). Coffee seed, different from Bourbon, being a larger flat type bean and considered better quality, most suitable to higher altitudes.

arbitrage. A transaction wherein the operator takes advantage of either difference in time or means of communication between markets, buying to advantage in one and selling almost simultaneously in the other.

arroba. A measure of weight used in Central and South American countries. The usual equivalent of 12 half kilos or about 27.5 lbs.

as is. A term used when selling unsound coffees, meaning that the buyer knows what he is buying and agrees to take it as is.

astringent. A flavour that causes a puckering, salty sensation of the tongue. Typical of unwashed Indonesian Robustas.

bag. The following are the net weights per bag of coffee shipped from the producing countries: Brazil, 132 lbs; Colombia, 154 lbs; Arabia, 176 lbs; Cuba, 198 lbs; El Salvador, 152 lbs; Venezuela 130 lbs; Costa Rica 152 lbs; Peru, 152 lbs; Guatemala, 152 lbs; Haiti, 165 lbs; Java and Sumatra, 136 lbs; Br. E. Africa, 132 lbs; Mexico, 152 lbs; Nicaragua, 152 lbs; Dominican Republic, 165 lbs; Honduras, 152 lbs; Ecuador, 152-202 lbs; Zaire, 132 lbs; Angola, 176 lbs; and Yemen, 168 lbs.

baggy. An off-taste present in cups of weakly roasted coffees that have been unsuitably stored for a long time.

Bahia. A seaport of Brazil, capital of the state of Bahis, and port of shipment for certain low grades of Brazilian coffee known by this name.

baked. A taste or odour taint that gives the coffee brew an insipid taste and flat bouquet. Caused by underdevelopment of the bean during roasting due to insufficient rate of heat input.

bale. Former woven interior package(s) in an export unit of Yemen (Mocha) and Abyssinian (Ethiopia) Harrar coffee. Approximately 20,40,80 kilograms each. A half weighs 80 kilos or 176 lbs net. See bundle.

barista. A barista is someone that specializes in making and serving a variety of beverages. They usually work at a coffee shop/coffeehouse or café that serves coffee or espresso specialty drinks.

beneficio (Sp.). In the Central American coffee trade this term means coffee-cleaning establishments including washing, drying, and sorting machinery, as well as sun-drying patios.

bitterness. A desirable trait in coffee beans, but not to excess. More pronounced bitterness is often associated with the darkest roasts and with Robustas rather than Arabicas.

black beans. Dead coffee beans that have dropped from the trees before harvest. For counting imperfections in grading coffee on the Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange, the black bean has been taken as the basic unit and all imperfections are calculated in terms of black beans.

Blackjack coffee. This term is applied to coffee that has turned black during the process of curing, or in the hold of a vessel during transportation, or it may be due to a blighting disease.

bland. Primary taste caused by presence of salty tasting compounds. Found in unwashed coffees grown at elevations below 2,000 ft. Bland coffees range in taste from soft to neutral.

blend. A blend is a mixture of two or more coffee varieties. Roasters will make these blends depending on how the beans will be made. For example, a blend intended for espresso may be darker than a blend intended for a pour over.

Blue Mountain. A district of the island of Jamaica producing the finest coffee grown on the island. It makes a good appearing roast and pleasantly aromatic cup.

Boconó. A town in western Venezuela, giving its name to the coffee grown in that district. Boconós are considered a grade of Maracaibo coffee. They are light in colour and body with a neutral flavour and are frequently used as fillers in blends.

body. The physical properties of coffee perceived in sensation on the skin of the mouth. Usually associated with heavy, aged coffee flavour.

Boengie. A district of the island of Celebes, Indonesia. A small amount of coffee known by this name is produced here. The fine coffees from this district rank among the leading Indonesian growths.

Bogotá. Capital of the republic of Colombia, South America. The coffees known by this name are grown in the district around, and prepared in, the city. They are noted for bold. A large to very large, well formed, and even bean coffee.

bouquet. The total aromatic profile of a coffee brew. From the sensation produced by the gases and vapors on the smell to the fragrance, aroma, nose, and aftertaste of the brew.

Bourbon Santos. Name applied to coffee grown in Brazil, which originally was obtained from Mocha seed. Today Bourbon coffee is distinctly a Brazilian plant as no trees or seeds have been brought from the original source for more than 100 years. The Brazil “Bourbon” plant has been developed by grafting “Café Branco” with “Café Murtha” plants, the latter being much smaller than coffee trees usually seen in Brazil, and the berry of which resembles Arabian Mocha. Bourbon Santos is a small curly bean, producing a drink that is smooth and palatable. The finest coffee raised in Brazil.

brackish. A distasteful, bitter, salty taste fault occurring when excessive heat is applied after brewing.

brisures (Fr.). Broken, separated by screening, a special Haiti grade.

broken. Coffee beans cracked in the process of curing and cleaning.

brokers. There are several classifications of brokers in the coffee trade. “Cost and Freight Brokers” usually represent the shipper in the country of production and are paid a commission by them, generally on a percentage basis. “First-hand Brokers” are known as such because they usually deal in large quantities acting for exporters or importers selling on a cost and freight basis or on landed terms making their offerings to the larger buyers. “Spot Brokers” work principally with coffees on the spot trading with and for local firms. They also buy for out-of-town firms or operate in conjunction with out-of-town brokers. Their commission varies according to the service performed. “Floor Brokers” operate on the floor of the Coffee Exchange buying and selling “futures” at a fixed commission for the account of their principals.

Bucaramanga. Market name and town in the Department of Santander Colombia. Bucaramangas are good commercial coffees for blending purposes. Fancy Bucaramangas, when properly aged, are considered equal to old Sumatras.

bullhead. A coffee monstrosity in which the bean has developed to more than double the normal size. This occurs when two beans have grown together. They are interlocked and usually break apart during roasting.

bundle. Multiple bales. See bale.

burnt. A smoky or tarry odour and flavour resulting from applying too much heat for too long, charring all the bean fiber.

Buni. Unwashed, generally native-grown Arabica coffee from East Africa. See Mbuni.

buttery. A term describing a relatively high level of oily material suspended in the coffee brew resulting from substantial amounts of fat present in the green beans.

C. & F. Cost and freight. Term applied to sale of coffee when the seller absorbs freight charges and the buyer absorbs insurance charges in addition to cost of coffee.

C.I.F. Cost insurance, and freight. Same as C. & F. except that seller absorbs insurance premium.

café beneficiado (Port.). Hulled coffee.

café bonifieur (Fr.). Term applied in the French West Indies to coffee that has been thoroughly cleaned and polished. So called because the polishing machine is called the “bonifieur” (improver) in Guadeloupe.

café coques (Fr.). Same as café em coco — coffee in the dried pod.

café de panno (Port.). Coffee picked in the cloth, i.e., a cotton sheet is spread on the ground under the trees and the coffee does not touch the ground.

café despulpado (Port.). Washed coffee or pulped coffee, as this is the process used.

café em casca (Port.) Coffee parchment.

café em cereja (Port.). Coffee in the red cherry.

café em coco (Port.). Coffee in the dried pod.

café en parche (Fr.) Coffee in the parchment. Term used in Guadeloupe and Haiti.

café habitant (Fr.). Term applied in Guadeloupe and Haiti to coffee that has not been polished.

café rebeneficiado (Port.). Coffee re-separated or improved.

café terreiro (Port.). Coffee washed and dried in coco.

cafeate (Sp.). A local term used in Nicaragua for coffee with milk.

cafetal (Sp.). A plantation of coffee trees.

caffeine (C₈H₁₀N₄O₂). An alkaloidal sub-

- stance found in the coffee bean, coffee leaf, tea leaf, yerba mate, cacao bean, etc. Isolated in pure form, it forms long white silky needles. The caffeine content of green coffee averages 1.5%.
- caffeine content. In a cup of coffee 1.5 grains; of tea, less than one grain.
- caffiol. A volatile aromatic conglomerate formed during roasting.
- caffè tannic acid. A term erroneously used to describe the acids of coffee. There is no such definite compound in either green coffee or roasted coffee.
- Capitania (Sp.). Market name for a certain quality of coffee arriving at the port of Victoria, Brazil.
- cappuccino. A cappuccino is in between a macchiato and a latte. It is made by pouring espresso into the coffee cup, which is then filled with steamed milk and foam. A “dry” cappuccino has more foam, while a “wet” cappuccino has more milk.
- Caracas. Capital of Venezuela, South America. Coffee grown in the neighbourhood and shipped through this city is called “Caracas.”
- caracol (Sp.). A separation of coffee consisting of peaberries selected from firsts and seconds.
- caracolilo (Sp.). Name given to small peaberry coffee. It is also the name of the most popular type of Dominican coffee.
- caramelized. Burnt-like flavour, like caramelized sugar, not an undesirable taste if complemented with coffee flavour.
- caramelly. Aromatic sensation in the nose of coffee brew reminiscent of candies or syrups.
- Carangollo. A natural hybrid, found in the district of that name, in Minas Gerais, Brazil.
- carbon footprint. A carbon footprint is the total greenhouse gas (including carbon dioxide and methane) emissions caused by an individual, event, organisation, service, or product.
- carbon neutral. Carbon neutrality, or having a net zero carbon footprint, refers to achieving net zero carbon dioxide emissions by balancing carbon emissions with carbon removal (often through carbon offsetting) or simply eliminating carbon emissions altogether.
- carbony. Rich in carbon. An aromatic sensation reminiscent of a creosol-like substance or pyridine sensations similar to a burnt substance.
- cargo slacks. Bags of coffee that have become slack through leakage in transit.
- Cauca. River and Department in Colombia, where “Cauca” and “Popyan” coffees are produced.
- caustic. Taste sensation related to harsh. Burning, sour sensation on the side of the tongue when brew is first sipped, replaced by highly displeasing sour sensation as the brew cools.
- Chapeda. Mountain in Matto Grosso, Brazil. General term for a tableland of mountainous country. Certain coffees shipped from Bahia are called “Chapada.”
- cherry. Name applied to the ripe fruit of the coffee tree. The seeds, freed from all coverings, become “green coffee.”
- chicory. An addition or filler in coffee made from the plant, cichorium intybus, the wild variety of which is a perennial, but the cultivated plant is annual. The raw root is cut into slices, kiln dried, and then roasted in the same manner as coffee.
- chop. Before it is shipped from the country of production, each invoice of coffee is made up into a number of divisions called chops, the bags in each division being marked with a particular chop number.
- City roast. A term used in New York City, indicating a medium dark roasted coffee, but not as dark as a “full city roast.”
- clean. A well-graded coffee free of defects.
- Coatepec. A coffee-producing district in Vera Cruz, Mexico, about 60 miles from the city of Vera Cruz. Some authorities regard the finest grades of this coffee as comparing favourably with the best of the world’s growths. It is more acid than the west coast Mexican coffees, has more tang, and an excellent flavour.
- Cobán. Capital of the department of Alta Vera Paz in central Guatemala. Coffee known by this name is grown near this town, which is in a mountainous region. It is a waxy, bluish bean, making a handsome uniform roast, spicy and aromatic in the cup, and a particularly good blender.
- coffee. As defined by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), “Coffee is the seed of cultivated varieties of Coffea arabica, Coffea liberica, and Coffea robusta. Green coffee, raw coffee, or unroasted coffee is coffee freed from all but a small portion of its spermoderm and conforms in variety and in place of production to the name it bears. Roasted coffee is properly cleaned green coffee, which by the action of heat (roasting), has become brown and has developed its characteristic aroma.”
- coffee berry borer. Coffee berry borers are tiny black beetles that burrow inside
- coffee cherries. Present in almost all coffee-producing countries, they are very difficult to manage with insecticides because they are protected by the cherries. In crops affected by coffee borer beetles, yields are reduced because young bored cherries may fall prematurely, and all harvested bored cherries are of lower weight. Coffee berry borer damage also affects the sensory qualities of the coffee and this reduces the commercial value of the crop. If damage is significant, it can cause the cup to taste bitter, tarry, or fermented. Berry borer damage can also cause roasts to be irregular, which has a further impact on flavour.
- coffee classification. By size — green. It is the practice in the United States and Brazil to classify the size of the green coffee beans by passing them over numbered screens with round holes of various dimensions. The resulting sizes are designated as follows:
- No. 20 screen — very large bean
 - No. 19 screen — extra-large bean
 - No. 18 screen — large bean
 - No. 17 screen — bold bean
 - No. 16 screen — good bean
 - No. 15 screen — medium bean
 - No. 14/13 screen — small bean
- Peaberry coffees are classified over screens Nos 9 to 13 containing holes of oval shape contrasted to round holes in the flat bean listed above. The trade as a custom accepts a tolerance of 10-15% in screenings. For a discussion of classification of green beans according to imperfections see “coffee grading.”
- coffee fruit. The outer wrapping is a gossamer-like skin that covers a soft pulp sweetish to the taste, but of mucilaginous consistency. This pulp in turn encloses the inner seal, called the parchment (because of its tough texture), which covers each seed or bean, outside the tight-fitting “silver skin,” delicately silver-coloured and like fine spun silk or the sheerest of paper tissue, which is the final wrapping of the bean.
- coffee grader. An official licensed by the Coffee Exchange, whose duty it is to grade the coffee according to types recognized by the Exchange.
- coffee gradings. The Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange Inc provides a trading place for coffee futures contracts. Trading at present is carried on in three contracts, the “B” or Brazil contract, the “C” or Mild contract, and the “R” or world contract covering Robusta coffees. The “B” contract applies to Brazilian coffee shipped through the ports of Santos, Paranagua, Angra dos Reis, Niteroi, or Rio de Janeiro grading from No 2 to No 6 inclusive, provided the average grade shall not be below No 5 nor above No 3.

Delivery of coffee averaging above No 3, however, is permitted at a premium for the No 3 grade. Coffee for delivery under the “B” contract is described as fair to good roast, strictly soft, soft or softish, solid bean. The delivery must consist of coffee from one port only. Hard coffee cannot be delivered. Additions or deductions are made for grades, port of shipment, and description (quality) according to the differentials set up by the Coffee Exchange at stated intervals.

Trading in the “C” contract covers Washed Arabica coffee, of Colombian growth known as Medellin, Armenia, Manizales, Bogotá, Sevilla, Girardot, Libano, or Tolima; or Mexico; or of growths of El Salvador; and Guatemala. The delivery must consist of coffee of one growth, and in the case of Colombia, one kind only. No delivery is permitted of coffee containing more than 10 full imperfections below type. Coffee deliverable shall be sweet in the cup, good roasting quality, and of bean size and colour in accordance with type and chart established by the Exchange. Such coffees are subject to deductions and additions or differentials established by the Exchange at stated intervals.

The “R” contract applies to Robusta coffee of the growths of Uganda, Bukoba, Angola, Congo (Leopoldville, Ivory Coast, Cameroon, Sierra Leone, Ubangia Central Africa Togo, Guinea, Malagasy, and Indonesia. Native Ugandas are the base type with additions or deductions for types, growths, or preparations in accordance with differentials established by the Exchange. No coffee inferior to type is deliverable and there is no premium for coffee grading better than the type established by the Exchange. Coffee shall be sound in cup, fair to good roast, and solid bean.

In the case of each of the three contracts, at intervals of not less than six months, the Committee on Coffee shall report to the Board of Managers, schedules of differentials in respect of coffee deliveries under the then current form of contracts and in respect of any new or additional grades, growths, or kinds of coffee which are required to be included as deliverable, which differentials shall at the time of such report be realistically related to values in the spot market. Based upon the report of the Committee on Coffee and such other information as it may deem appropriate, the Board of Managers, within 15 days after such report, shall determine differentials for the coffees deliverable under the then current forms of contracts and differentials for any new grades, growths, or kinds of coffees required to be made deliverable, which differentials shall be such as the Board of Managers may consider appropriate. If the differentials so determined shall be different from those applicable to the then current form of any contract, the Board of Managers shall authorize and open for trading a revised form of contract to which the differentials so determined shall be applicable. Normal delivery months are March, May, July, September, and December.

The grade of the coffee traded in on the Exchange is determined by comparison with the standard types as adopted by the Exchange. There are seven of these standards — No 2 to No 8. No 2 is a high-grade coffee, and types after that are successively lower in quality. No 6 is the lowest type deliverable. In determining the number of a type, the coffee is graded by the number of imperfections contained in it. In general, the various kinds of imperfections are black beans, broken beans, shells, immature beans, (“quakers”), stones, sticks, and pods. For counting the number of imperfections, the black bean has been taken as the basis, and all imperfections, no matter what they may be, are calculated in terms of black beans, which trade custom has worked out as follows:

3 shells = 1 black bean
5 quakers = 1 black bean
5 broken beans = 1 black bean
1 small pod = 1 black bean
1 large pod = 2 black beans
1 medium size stone = 1 black bean
2 small stones = 1 black bean
1 large stone = 2 black beans

By this scale, coffee containing no imperfections would be classified as type No 1, but the possibility of this occurring is remote. The test is made on one-pound samples. If a sample shows six black beans or equivalent imperfections it is graded as No 2; if 13 black beans as No 3; if 29 black beans as No 4, if 60 black beans as No 5; if 115 black beans as No 6; types Nos 7 and 8 containing more than 115 black beans are graded by comparison with recognized Exchange types. Coffees graded lower than No 8 are not admitted into the U.S.

coffee insurance. It is customary for coffee roasters in the trade to carry insurance on all coffee in their buildings waiting to be roasted. The charge for roasting covers cartage, storage, and insurance.

cold brew coffee. The cold brewing process trades time for temperature; instead of brewing with very hot water over a quick duration, cold brewing uses ambient or cooler water and extended periods of time to extract an optimal amount of flavour compounds and solids from the beans. The cold-brewing process results in a smoother and less bitter beverage. Cold brew coffees can be bottled, boxed, canned, and kegged; served straight or with dairy or non-dairy milks, sugar, flavouring, carbonation and nitrogen additives.

coffee leaf miner. Coffee leaf miners are two related species of moth: Leucoptera coffeella, which is prevalent in Latin America, and Leucoptera coffeina, which is found in African producing countries. Coffee leaf miner larvae eat coffee leaves. If several live on the same leaf, it may suffer necrosis of up to 90% of its structure. (Necrosis is the death of cells and it appears as dark watery spots or brown papery patches.) Defoliation affects the plant's ability to photosynthesize. Without photosynthesis, the plant cannot grow properly.

coffee leaf rust. Caused by the fungus Hemileia vastatrix, coffee leaf rust or “la roya” (Sp.) is a parasitic fungus that infects coffee plants and is a worldwide problem for coffee producers. It manifests as yellow spots that first affect the undersides of the leaves and then develops into a yellow-orange powdery dust that is easily transferred among plants. Coffee leaf rust causes defoliation by attacking the leaves of the plant, preventing them from photosynthesizing light into energy. As the disease progresses, the leaves fall off, as well as any flowers or cherries. The result is a greatly reduced or completely destroyed harvest. Plants affected by coffee leaf rust are unable to ripen fully, however, those plants that do fruit, will produce light beans that taste astringent. Wind and rain spread coffee leaf rust spores, which thrive at around 70°F/21°C, so, the disease is most prevalent in Arabica grown in the warm, humid conditions of low altitudes.

commission merchant. A person or firm receiving coffee on consignment for sale in a consuming country.

conto. A term in Brazil currency equal to 1,000 cruzeiros.

contract. A Coffee Exchange contract is 32,500 lbs (250 bags); for the “B” contract, 37,500 lbs (250 bags) for the “C” contract; and 33,600 lbs (60-80 kilo bags) for the “R” contract. See also coffee gradings.

Córdoba. A city in the state of Vera Cruz, Mexico, 60 miles from the city of Vera Cruz. Coffees grown in the district of Córdoba take that name. They are too neutral to form the basis of a blend but can be used to balance the tang of other grades.

country damage. An insurance term meaning damage to coffees occurring in the country of origin after shipment, by contact with wet ground or fresh water.

creosty. Taste sensation characterized by a bitter, predominately scratching at the back of the tongue upon first sipping followed by strong after-taste upon swallowing. Typical of dark roast coffees.

Creoule. A variety of Trinidad coffee.

cup testing. Judging the merits of a coffee by roasting and brewing some of it to determine whether it has body and if it is smooth, rich, acidic, or mellow; if it is winy, neutral, harsh, or Rioy; if it is musty, groundy, woody, or grassy; if it is rank, hidy, sour, muddy, or bitter. The brew is sipped and held in the mouth only long enough to get the full strength of the flavour. It is then spat out.

cups of coffee to the pound. The average, of good strength, is 40 cups.

Dalgona coffee. A whipped, frothy coffee drink made with instant coffee, sugar, water, and milk (cold or hot). Also known as “whipped coffee”, “frothy coffee”, or “fluffy coffee”, Dalgona coffee has two distinct layers made from whipped coffee cream sitting on top of milk (can regular, almond, oat or soy milk, etc.). Became popular during the Covid-19 global pandemic.

date of invoice. Unless otherwise stipulated, all spot invoices date from the date of purchase, and of from the time of shipment.

decaffeinated tastes. Special process tastes found in decaffeinated coffees due to something lacking, additional flavour compounds, or to trace elements of decaffeination solvents.

decaffeination. Removal of caffeine from the coffee bean done by various methods.

defects. These include husks, pods, broken, beans in parchment, blacks, sour beans, quakers (stinkers), and any foreign objects such as sticks, stones, etc. All are counted as imperfections during grading at various defect negative values.

deforestation. Deforestation is the permanent removal of trees to make room for something besides forest. This can include clearing the land for agriculture or grazing, or using the timber for fuel, construction or manufacturing.

delivered. The seller undertakes to guarantee safe carriage at his expense to the point stipulated in the contract and reweigh at destination.

dirty. A fuzzy or dirty taste that dominates the coffee flavour background. See “earthy.”

discounts. The discounts for cash payment are 2% within 10 days of the invoice date on 100 bags and over, and 11/2% within 10 days on less than 100 bags. On spot purchases of Brazils, bought on a 90-day basis, 8% per annum is allowed for anticipation, while on Milds sold on 4 months’ basis, 6% per annum is allowed for anticipation.

However, since World War II, most sales have been on the basis of net cash in 10 days with no discounts allowed.

direct process decaffeination. A water process decaffeination method involves applying a solvent directly to the green coffee beans after the caffeine has been brought to their surface by steam or hot water.

doppio. A “double shot of espresso.”

dry fermenting. When washed coffee is fermented without water.

dry roast. A roasting process in which no water is used to check the roast, the operator depending entirely upon his cooling apparatus.

dull. Indicates coffee that has lost original or usual zest, pungency. Gives impression of roundness but at the same time lacks character.

earthy. The undesirable odour and taste of freshly turned soil that produces a dirt-like aftertaste sensation. It is due to poor preparation conditions and botanical origins where fats in the green coffee beans absorb organic material from the ground during the drying process during harvesting.

En oro (Sp.). Term used in Guatemala and Mexico for washed coffee when the parchment and silver skin have been removed; also known as “clean coffee.”

En parche (Fr.). Term used in French speaking producing countries for coffee in the parchment.

ensacador (Port.). Brazilian word meaning “coffee bagger.”

Escogido (Sp.). A term used in Ecuador for coffees passed through classifying machines and finally selected by hand.

espresso. A coffee drink made by forcing hot, pressurized water through finely ground coffee beans. This creates a very concentrated drink, often with a layer of caramel-coloured foam on top — the crème. Espresso, however, is not a type of coffee bean or roast; while espresso is commonly made with darker roasts, it can be made with any type of coffee beans.

espresso-blended beverage. Espresso blended with milk or alternative dairy products (almond, oat, soy milk) and syrups (chocolate, caramel, vanilla, hazelnut, etc.) and often topped with whipped cream. Can be served hot or cold. Beverages such as lattes and macchiatos are espresso-blended beverages.

Ethiopian (also Abyssinian). Arabica coffee produced mainly in the provinces of Djimmah, Sidamo, Lekampiti, and Saio in western and southwestern Ethiopia from wild trees.

excelso. A grade of Colombian coffee consisting of qualities corresponding to “Supremo” and “Extra” types mixed and may include peaberry of those grades.

ex dock. Ex dock contracts require the buyer to take delivery from the pier. Reweighing should be stipulated in the contract, also an understanding with regards to damaged coffees. Invoices date when coffees are ready for delivery. While most sales are now on a net cash basis, if any discounts for cash are allowed, they should be stipulated in the contract.

ex ship. Coffee that is sold before arrival with the understanding that the buyer will remove it immediately after unloading on the dock. Storage charges are to be paid by the buyer.

ex warehouse. On sales ex warehouse the seller simply agrees to place the coffees at the disposal of the buyer (store door delivery), all charges thereafter, except weighing, to be for account of the buyer.

F.A.Q. Fair average quality.

fazenda (Port.) A farm, thus a coffee plantation is a coffee fazenda. Term used in Brazil.

fazendeiro (Port.) Proprietor of a fazenda.

fermented. A taste fault in coffee beans producing a highly displeasing sour sensation on the tongue.

fermenting. A step in the preparation of ripe coffee, which consists of putting the pulped coffee into tanks, with or without water. The process takes hours to days according to altitude and temperature.

finca (Sp.). A farm; commonly used for coffee plantation.

finquero (Sp.). A farm; commonly used for coffee plantation. Also, proprietor of a coffee plantation. Term mostly used in Central America.

flat. A lifeless coffee denoting a lack of gases and vapors in the fragrance, aroma, nose, and aftertaste. Lack of character and consistency in the brew.

Flatbean Santos. A larger bean and without the curly characteristics generally noted in Bourbon Santos. Usually void of acid.

flat white. A flat white is an espresso-based drink that contains a small amount of steamed milk and a thin layer of microfoam (rather than the peaks of foam found in a cappuccino). The flat white originated in either Australia or New Zealand but has been around “down under” since the 1980s, becoming available in the United Kingdom and the United States in the 2000s. It is now a specialty coffeehouse standard.

F.O.B. Free on board. The seller agrees to place the coffees safely on board the carrier designated by the purchaser. According to a ruling by the Green Coffee Association of New York, F.O.B. New York means F.O.B. only at one of the four coffee terminals approved by the Association. In other words, a seller in New York is not obligated to make F.O.B. deliveries at points other than the approved coffee terminals.

forwarder. An agent who takes charge of a coffee shipment for interior clients and directs its transportation from shipping port or warehouse.

French roast. Term applied to roasted coffee and means that the bean is roasted high enough to bring the natural oil of the coffee to the surface.

fresh. Not stale, sour, or decayed. An aromatic highlight in the coffee bean or brew that is highly pleasing.

fruity. An aromatic or fruit-like flavour. A strong over-ripe characteristic prevalent in coffees left too long in the cherry.

full. Description denoting presence of a complete set of gases and vapors in the fragrance, aroma, nose, and aftertaste of the coffee. Full and balanced taste.

Full city roast. A term applied to roasted coffee in New York, indicating a roast slightly heavier than a “city roast.” The beans are roasted to their full development in a “full city roast.”

futures. The purchase or sale of a coffee contract for delivery in the future. These contracts are dealt in like stocks and bonds, and settlement is made by paying the difference in price, or margin. Liquidation of futures contracts is made by delivery of the coffee or payment of differences.

G

General average. An insurance term meaning a loss arising from a voluntary and successful sacrifice, or expenses incurred under extraordinary circumstances for the purpose of averting a threatening danger to the common safety. General average losses are contributed to by all the interests at risk and which are benefitted by the General Average Act.

glazing. Synonymous with coating. Roasted coffees are sometimes glazed or coated to preserve the natural flavour and aroma and to meet the demand of certain classes of trade, principally in the South.

grade. A measure of quality agreeing with a standard or varying from it according to certain fixed differences.

groundy. An earthy taste sometimes found in damaged coffee. It differs from mustiness.

Guaxupé. A town in the State of Minas Gerais, Brazil. Coffees shipped under this name are high grade, acidic, and flavoury.

H

hacienda (Sp.). Farm or ranch. In Venezuela, usually means coffee plantation.

Haiti. A republic in the West Indies, with growing importance as a coffee producer. Haitian coffee has as a main characteristic a large bean, and heavy body. A flavoury coffee that is well adapted to blending.

Hamakua. Coffee-growing district of Hawaii. Produces a good quality coffee.

Harar. City and province in Ethiopia. The coffee of Harar used to be known to the trade as Longberry Mocha or Abyssinian Longberry. It is now known as Harar. It is exported through Djibouti or Aden.

harsh. Coffee taste sensation of bitterness, astringency. Found in poor quality Robusta coffees — most are not suitable for commercial purposes such as Liberica or Excelsa. Due to imperfect bean.

heavy. Denotes presence of high level of bean fiber and insoluble proteins in the brew.

hectare. A metric unit of land measure equivalent to 2.471 acres.

herby. Found in the cup aroma resembling the odour or flavour of herbs. Can range from oniony to cabbagey.

hidy. An odour fault that gives coffee beans a leathery smell. Caused by excessive heat during the drying process usually associated with coffees dried by a mechanical dryer.

HoReCa. An acronym for the hospitality industry: hotels, restaurants, and cafés.

hulling. A last step in the preparation of washed coffee prior to milling. The operation is done by machines that remove the parchment and “silver skin.”

husking. Cleaning coffee beans that have been dried in the cherry. Coffee is said to be “in the husk” when the whole fruit is dried without water treatment.

imperfections. Coffee is graded by the number of imperfections in the sample. These are black beans, broken beans, shells, immature beans, stinkers (“quakers”), stones, and pods.

importer. A person or firm that buys for shipment from the producing country and resells the invoice as shipped, in any position, as a whole or in divided quantities without selection of specified chops.

indirect method. A method of decaffeination that uses water to first leach out the caffeine. Then a solvent is applied to the caffeinated water, which also contains vital coffee properties. The caffeine-laden solvent is then separated from the water, which still contains oils and other materials important to flavour. The water is returned and reabsorbed by the green beans.

insipid. A taste taint giving the coffee brew a lifeless character. Result of oxygen and moisture penetrating the bean fiber prior to brewing.

in store. In store contracts require the seller to store the coffees, clean them, and make them ready for delivery. Buyer should receive the benefit of free storage, fire insurance, and weighing privileges as previously determined. Invoices date when 90% of the coffees are in store and ready for delivery. Only sound and made sound coffees are deliverable. According to a ruling of the Green Coffee Association of New York, “in store” means stored at one of the four approved coffee terminals.

invisible supply. The unknown stocks of coffee, including those held by roasters, retailers, etc.

invoice. One or more chops of coffee billed together at one time as one sale.

Italian roast. Term applied to coffee that has been roasted darker than French roast. Used by Italians as well as in many of the coffee-producing countries.

J

Java. An island of Indonesia; principal ports are Djakarta, Semarang, and Surabaya. Only coffees of the Coffea arabica variety grown upon this island can be labelled “Java” in the United States. Java coffee was originally of the Coffea arabica variety, but now the Liberian and Robusta varieties are also grown on the island.

K

kafa. Wild Abyssinian coffee (q.v. “Abyssinian”).

Kona. A district on the west side of the island of Hawaii. Produces the best of Hawaiian coffee. It has a large, blue, flinty bean, is mildly acid, and has striking character.

last bag notice. When approximately 90% of a coffee cargo has been unloaded and stored, the warehouse issues have become known as the “last bag notice.” In the majority of cases, the coffee has been sold before arrival and, on receipt of the notice, the importer can transfer ownership of the coffee to save interest.

latte. A caffè latte is made by pouring milk into the espresso. First the espresso is poured into the coffee cup, and then warm milk is added until the cup is full.

lavado (Sp.). Term equivalent to “washed.”

Liberian. Coffee liberica, the coffee species that originated in Liberia, Africa. It was formerly mixed with Bourbon Santos to some extent but is generally considered low grade, although it makes a handsome, elephantine roast.

light. Coffee body term indicating a low level of fine particles, bean fiber, and insoluble proteins.

Longberry Harar. A grade of coffee produced in Ethiopia (Abyssinia). Harar coffees are separated into three grades: 1. All large beans; 2. Shortberry (all small beans); and 3. Longberry, which is between grades 1 and 2.

macchiato. A caffè macchiato is an espresso with a little bit of steamed milk. In Italian, “macchiato” means “marked,” so it is an espresso marked with milk.

machine épierré (Fr.). Machine stoned: i.e., simple preparation by machine. Term used in Haiti.

made sound. Coffee that was damaged, but which has been cleaned and made merchantable.

Malabar. Name given to the best of India coffees; small, blue-green bean, with strong flavour and deep colour in the cup.

malty. A flavour fault found in the nose of the brew producing sensations reminiscent of roasted cereal grains, walnuts, or maple.

Mandheling. Coffee produced in Mandheling district on Sumatra’s west coast. It is one of the finest and highest-priced coffees in the world.

Manizales. Market name and town in the department of Caldas, Colombia. Manizales coffees are similar to Medellín in cup qualities, but not so heavy-bodied nor flavoury.

Maragogipe. A variety of Coffea arabica, first discovered growing near the town of Maragogipe, Bahia, Brazil, where it is called Coffea indigena. It is a well-defined variety, with very large leaves; large berries, broad, and sometimes narrower in the middle; a light bearer.

margin. Required for trading in coffee future contracts on New York Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange.

Matagalpa. A coffee-growing district of Nicaragua. The coffee has a large, handsome, blue, washed bean, making a fancy roast with plenty of acid in the cup.

Mazagran (Fr.). The French name for a drink composed of cold coffee and seltzer water.

Mbuni. Unwashed, generally native-grown Arabica coffee from East Africa.

Medellín. Capital city of the Department of Antioquia, Colombia. Name given to one of the finest growths of Colombian coffee. Medellín are fancy mountain-grown coffees and are esteemed for their good qualities. They are light to dark green, handsome roasters, with fine flavour and body.

medicinal. Taste sensation related to harsh. A medicine-like flavour or odour, usually unpleasant. Smell of disinfectants, iodine, chlorine.

mellow. A rounded smooth taste lacking acidity. Not too acid, not too bitter, but dense, rich, and rounded.

Mérida. District of Venezuela. Gives its name to one of the best of Maracaibo coffees. Méridas are sought for their peculiarly delicate flavour.

Mexican natural water decaffeination method. A patented and unrevealed decaffeination method which involves a series of intricate steps using water and an organic solvent.

mild coffees. Coffees produced mainly in countries other than Brazil. A term formerly used to indicate coffees that are free from the harsh Rio flavour.

Minas Gerais. Fourth largest state in Brazil, and one of the leading coffee-producing regions. Produces a Rio coffee of peculiar flavour.

Mococoa. A coffee district in the State of São Paulo, Brazil. Coffee sold under this name is of good quality with heavy body.

Mocha. Former important coffee port on the Red Sea coast of Arabia. Closed by a sandbar over 100 years ago. Only coffees grown in Arabia are entitled to the trade name Mocha. They are now shipped through the ports of Hodeida and Aden. Small, irregular beans, in colour olive green shading, off to pale yellow. The roast is poor and irregular. In the cup, the finest qualities have a unique acid character, heavy body; in flavour, smooth and delicious.

mocha. A caffè mocha is based on espresso and hot milk but with added chocolate flavouring and sweetener, typically in the form of cocoa powder and sugar. Many varieties use chocolate syrup instead, and some may contain dark or milk chocolate.

moldy. An odour or flavour suggestive of mold. Coffee can acquire a moldy taste if kept in poor conditions.

mouthfeel. Describes the sensation in the mouth of fullness of body and is often associated with naturalness.

muddy. A dull, indistinct, thickish flavour. Full of sediment, possibly from stirring of grounds.

Murtha. Coffea myrtifolia, a Santos coffee said to provide the finest and smoothest cup in this variety.

musty. A flavour often found in coffee as a result of either overheating or lack of sufficient and proper drying or aging. Mustiness from overheating is undesirable, while the must of age is very desirable.

Mysore. A native state of southern India that produces a mountain-grown coffee mostly marketed in England.

nippy. Taste sensation related to acidic characterized by sweet, nipping sensation at the tip of the tongue when brew is first sipped, replaced by sweet sensation as the brew cools.

nitro cold brew coffee. Cold brew coffee infused with nitrogen. Can be served from a draught tap, bottled, or canned. See “cold brew coffee.”

no arrival, no sale. This clause is intended to relieve a seller from the obligation of filling a contract when it can be shown that he actually made the shipment but that it was lost in transit.

nose. The aroma, sensation of the vapors released from brewed coffee.

notice. Announcement of final delivery on a previously made “future” contract; used in coffee trading on the Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange.

O

Oaxaca. Capital of the state of Oaxaca Mexico.

Oaxaca coffee is valued because of its sharp acidity and excellent flavour. The bean of the Sierra Oaxaca (common unwashed) is not large, nor is the appearance stylish. The Pluma Oaxaca (washed) coffee is a fancy bean and good for blending purposes.

oily. Slick, greasy oral sensation due to a high degree of roasting.

old. A complete lack of freshness, somewhat flat taste with a slight flavour of hay. Synonym: stale.

Orizaba. The capital of the state of Vera Cruz. Mexico. Gives its name to coffee grown in the surrounding district. This coffee has good cup quality and ranks next to Huatusco.

paloteo. A coffee plant disease that desiccates and defoliates coffee bushes resulting in dried out berries that rot prior to ripening. Many suspect that paloteo is another manifestation of rust. Mainly found in Colombia.

Parana. Now the largest coffee-producing state in Brazil and located in the southern section of the country. It is also one of the youngest coffee regions in Brazil. The capital of the state is Curitiba and the shipping port is Paranagua. Coffees from this state are referred to as Paranas and are similar to Santos type but not of quite as good quality. The beans are medium to large with a mild to strong flavour.

parchment. The endocarp of the coffee fruit. It lies between the fleshy part or pericarp and the silver skin and is removed during the hulling process. Coffee is said to be “in the parchment” when dried after the outer skin and pulp have been removed by water treatment.

particular average. An insurance term meaning a partial loss or damage to ship cargo or freight, or any of them resulting directly from the perils of the voyage and which are purely accidental in nature. Under particular average, the losses are not contributed to by the other interests but are borne by that interest which has sustained the damage.

pasilla. A Colombian coffee of low grade; also, hand pickings.

past crop. Flavour and aroma in which normal characteristics of a mature greenish coffee are weakened or toned down. A taste taint that gives coffee beans a particularly less acidic and heavier flavour.

patio (Sp.). A cement-covered courtyard where green coffees are sun-dried.

peaberry. A rounded bean from an occasional coffee cherry that contains but one seed instead of the usual flat-sided pair. This is due to non-development of one of the ovules — an abortion most common in Arabica coffees. These round beans were formerly called gragé coffee, but now are more commonly known as peaberry, or male berry. It is the same in cup quality as the flat bean.

pergamino (Sp.). Pergamino coffee is coffee that has been dried after pulping, fermenting, and washing. See “parchment.”

pilado (Sp.). A term used in Ecuador for coffee dried and hulled by dry process.

pilé (Fr). Coffee dried and hulled by dry process. Term used in Haiti.

plantation coffee. A term used in India for pergamino, or parchment coffee.

pod. Dried portion of silver skin or fegument, being the thin membrane between the parchment and the bean.

points. A term used by coffee graders to indicate difference in grades. The term is also used by Coffee Exchange operators to indicate fluctuations in prices, 100 points constituting one cent.

pour over. With a pour over, the coffee is made by pouring hot water over grounds. The grounds are placed in a filter in a pour over cone, and hot water is slowly poured over them. It is a simple and clean way that brings out the coffee's flavour in a distinctive way.

primary market. The market in the country of production.

Puerto Cabello. A seaport town of Venezuela. Coffees known by this name are grown at a low altitude and are inferior in flavour to Caracas coffee.

pulping. The first step after picking in the preparation of coffee by the wet method. It consists in removing by machinery the outer skin. The machines rub away the pulp by friction without crushing the beans.

pungent. A taste sensation of overall bitterness of the brew. A prickly, stinging, or piercing sensation not necessarily unpleasant.

quakers. Term applied to blighted and undeveloped coffee beans. While a number of them will affect the quality in the cup, a few quakers are not considered harmful to the cup quality. They will, however, roast lighter than sound coffee and are therefore considered undesirable. Quakers are fewer in washed coffee. Also known as stinkers.

quakery. A peanutty flavour caused by undeveloped, unripe, or dead bean that appears very light coloured when roasted.

quintal. A unit of weight when applied to coffee is generally taken to mean 101.4 lbs, but which varies from country to country.

rancid. A taste fault giving the coffee brew a highly displeasing taste. A rank odour like oil.

rank. A dirty, unpleasant flavour due mainly to contamination or overfermentation.

rat eaten. Bags attacked by rats while in the hold of the vessel or in the warehouse. According to trade custom, the steamship's agent or the warehouse worker must furnish new bags.

ready-to-drink (RTD). Coffee (regular, espresso, cold brew) that has already been brewed and prepared and is consumed cold. RTD coffee is shelf stable for an extended period of time. Can be sweetened or unsweetened, with milk (regular or alternative formats such as almond milk, oat milk, soy milk) or dairy-free. Available in a variety of styles such as cappuccino, espresso, latte, macchiato, mocha, nitro cold brew, etc.).

rich. Describes a coffee's bouquet denoting the presence of a complete set of gases and vapors in the fragrance, aroma, nose, and aftertaste. An overall likely full-bodied flavour.

Rio de Janeiro. Former capital of Brazil and its most important city. Coffees shipped through this port are known as Rios. Rio coffee is principally used in the US because of its low price. Being harsh and pungent in the cup, its unusual taste makes it popular among consumers in certain sections of southern United States where its use dates back to the beginning of the packaged coffee industry. In colour the bean runs from light green to dark green, but when it is stored for any length of time the colour changes to a golden yellow and the coffee is then known as “golden Rio.”

Rio flavour. A heavy and harsh taste characteristic of coffees grown in the Rio district of Brazil, and sometimes present even in fancy mild coffees.

rioy. An unpleasant iodine-like flavour. The lowest quality of Brazil coffees. Caused by allowing the coffee beans to remain inside the fruit while the fruit is allowed to partially dry on the shrub.

ristretto. An espresso ristretto, literally “restricted espresso,” is essentially a “short” shot, even more concentrated than a normal espresso.

Robusta. Coffea laurentii, Robusta coffee, is a species discovered growing wild in the Congo by Emil Laurent in 1898. A Brussels horticultural firm that took it up commercially designated it Robusta. The plant is much larger than either the Arabica or the Liberica. The tree is a very hardy variety, and for this reason has been cultivated rather extensively. The United States Bureau of Chemistry ruled in February 1921, that Coffea robusta could not be sold as Java coffee, or under any form of labelling which tended either directly or indirectly to create the impression that it was Coffea arabica so long and favourably known as Java Coffee. This was in line with the Department of Agriculture's previous definition that coffee was the seed of the Coffea arabica or Coffea liberica and that Java coffee was Coffea arabica from Java. Robustas have traded on the Coffee Sugar & Cocoa Exchange on Contract "R" since in 1960.

Roya/la roya (Sp.). See "coffee leaf rust."

rubbery coffee. Term usually applied to the taste of Robustas.

Rubiaceae (L.). The botanical family to which coffee belongs.

Sanani. Mocha coffee from the Sana region of Arabia. One of the better grade Mochas; little used in the United States.

Santos. The principal shipping port for coffee in Brazil. It is 200 miles south west of Rio de Janeiro and 49 miles from São Paulo. The city gives its name to the coffees that pass through it. Santos coffees, considered as a whole, have the distinction of being the best grown in Brazil. The bulk of the Santos coffees are hull-dried on open terraces, as the "dry" method has been found best for handling large volume of crop.

screen. The general term for size gradings based on the mesh/screen size through which the beans may be retained while grading.

Segunda. A grade of Colombian coffee consisting of small but sound beans and may have a mixture of peaberries.

Semarang. A seaport town on the north coast of the island of Java. Coffee known by this name is a small, yellowish green bean and is light and thin in cup quality.

ship fillings. Term formerly used to describe coffees swept from the hold of the vessel and from the pier. According to trade custom, the steamship's agent must clean and bag these before delivery. See also "ship spillings" and "ship sweepings."

ship samples. Samples of coffees forwarded from port of shipment, representing cargo shipped. They usually precede actual shipment, coming by fast steamer before shipment is made.

ship spills or spillings. Spillings include all such coffee retrieved with a clean shovel, scoop, or other similar and suitable appliance from piles of coffee spilled in the ship's holds or on the floor of piers by skimming from such piles, all coffee which has not been in contact with the floor and the filth found on unclean floors. Such spillings may be removed from piers for consumption. These spillings are bagged by the steamship company or agent and are either sold for the account of importers or allocated by the steamship company to the importers.

ship sweepings. Sweepings includes all loose coffee that is swept up from the ship's holds and the floors of piers, including generally the beans that have been in contact with the floor and filth found on unclean floors. The sweepings are not to be removed from the piers for entry in the country but must be placed in containers by the steamship company or its agent and held ready for disposal or dumping. Coffee sweepings originating in and shipped from foreign countries will be denied entry and reconditioning is not permitted though they may be exported upon application to custom authorities.

shipper's slacks. These are bags of coffee originally delivered by the shipper to the steamer in a slack filled condition. The steamship company is not required to furnish ship spillings offsetting the slack weight. They should, however, note them as slacks on the bills of lading, which they usually do not.

Shortberry Harar. A shorter bean coffee than the Longberry Harar (q.v.).

silver skin. The thin, papery covering on the coffee bean surface, inside the parchment.

single origin. A single origin coffee is a coffee that comes from a single place. But this phrase can be used broadly, with some brands using it to define coffee that comes from a single farm (although that is more commonly seen as "single estate"), and other defining coffee that comes from a group of farms in the same area. Some roasters focus on a single section of a single farm.

sizing. Grading the green coffee bean by sizes. Done usually by machines that automatically separate and distribute the different beans according to size and form. The principal grades are triage, third flats, second flats, first flats, and first and second peaberries.

skimmings. That part of a bag of coffee which has been damaged in shipment by contact with moisture. The damaged portion is "skimmed off" and classified according to the extent of the damage as good skimmings (GS), medium skimmings (MS), and poor skimmings (PS).

slacks and bad order bags. Bags of coffee that have become torn in transit and part of their content spilled.

Sobras. A non-exportable grade of Colombian coffee, consisting of waste or residues of coffee.

sorting or sorted electronically. The elimination by electronic colour-sorting machinery of all beans either lighter or darker, not corresponding exactly to a pre-set colour, thus obtaining coffee of top quality. This process is used for both green and roasted coffee prior to bagging or packing.

sound coffee. Coffee in merchantable condition.

sour beans. Fully developed large but unripe or blighted bean with same characteristic in the roast and cup as a quaker.

source. The place of origin, sometimes understood as a seacoast port of the country of origin. On Colombian coffee it means the place of origin in the interior.

spot. Green coffee buyers in the large importing centers recognize two distinct markets in their operations. One of these is called the "spot" market, because the importers, brokers, jobbers, and roasters trading there deal in actual coffee in warehouses or in consuming countries. The other market is designated as the "futures" or "shipment" market. The trading here is concerned with the purchase or sale of contracts for future delivery of coffee that may still be on the trees in the producing country. Futures, or "options," as they are frequently called, are dealt in only a coffee exchange.

standard. Quality arbitrarily fixed by some recognized authority such as the Coffee Exchange, or the Green Coffee Association.

steamer sweat. An insurance term meaning damage to coffee from sweat generated by the heat in the hold of a vessel.

steel cut. Generally understood to mean that in the grinding process the chaff has been removed and an approximate uniformity of granules has been obtained by sifting. The term does not necessarily mean that the grinding mills have steel burrs.

style. A trade term used to designate the appearance of a whole coffee bean, either green or roasted.

summer roast. The summer heat causes coffee to sweat, so roasters frequently give the bean a lighter roast in summer than in winter to prevent sweating.

supercritical decaffeination. A method of decaffeination using carbon dioxide in a state that is neither solid, liquid, nor gas, which produces a high-quality coffee with negligible flavour removal and is free from residual solvents.

Supremo. The first or top grade of Colombian coffee.

sustainability. Per the UN World Commission on Environment and Development, sustainability focuses on meeting the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their needs. The concept of sustainability is composed of three pillars: economic, environmental, and social (known informally as profits, planet, and people).

sweated coffee. Green coffee that has been submitted to a steaming process to give the beans the extra-brown appearance. Artificial “sweating” is illegal and classified as adulteration and misbranding under the Pure Food & Drugs Act of 1906.

sweet. A trade term to describe coffee which is free from harshness or Rio flavour or any form of damage.

Swiss water process. A decaffeination method which uses charcoal to filter out caffeine instead of solvents.

Tampico. A port on the east coast of Mexico giving its name to an inferior grade of coffee.

tannin. The same as tannic acid. A solid, uncrystallizable, yellowish white, astringent compound. The tannin content of green coffee averages 8%. Roasting reduces this about 50% (Chem., C14H10O12).

tare. The weight of the bag in which the coffee is packed.

tercera (Sp.). Term equivalent of “thirds.”

Timor. The principal island of the Timor Archipelago, east of the Sunda islands and north of Australia. The northern part, a Portuguese possession, is producing a fair quantity of good quality coffee known as Timor.

tippling. Charring the little germ at the end of the coffee bean during the roasting process, by too quickly applying an intense heat.

Tovar. A town in Venezuela. Coffee known by this name has fair to good body without acidity and makes a duller roast than Cucatas. It is used for blending with Bourbon Santos.

triage (Fr. for grading or separating). Used by the coffee trade in some countries to describe broken coffee beans. The word is used in most coffee countries as one of the six usual coffee separations.

triliado (Sp.). Term equivalent to “husked.”

Trujillo. Capital of the Venezuelan state of the same name. Trujillo coffees lack acidity and make a dull rough roast unless aged. They are blended with Bourbon Santos to make a low-priced palatable coffee.

Turkish-style coffee. A trade term for a flour-like grind on a high roast.

type. A sample fairly representing the coffees under trade, but not necessarily a portion of the lot to be delivered.

unwashed coffee. Green coffee as produced by the dry process versus drying the entire fruit and then, by hulling operations, removing skin pulp parchment, and “silver skin.”

usual good quality or U.G.Q. Means usual good quality of the season, but frequently is left to arbitrators. Generally abbreviated as U.G.Q.

valorization. A plan or nature of price control applied by the Brazilian Government for the purpose of stabilizing the price of coffee. Valorization of coffee was first practiced in Brazil in 1908. In 1931, the Brazilian Government began purchasing surplus coffee stocks, storing them, and destroying the lower grade coffee so acquired, while at the same time imposing a tax on new plantings so as to limit total production. Due to increased consumption and the shortage of supply, valorization is no longer practiced but other methods are used today.

Victoria. A coffee port in the state of Espirito Santo, Brazil. Victorias rank fourth among Brazil coffees. They are a large, dingy green, or brown bean making a roast free from quakers, but muddy in the cup.

visible supply. The known coffee stocks in public warehouses, afloat and at ports of shipment.

washed coffee. Coffee that has been pulped, fermented, washed, dried, and hulled. The ripe fruit is passed through a “pulper,” which takes off the outer skin. Fermentation and washing remove the gummy substance. Drying, hulling, and separating complete the preparation process.

W.I.P. Stands for West Indian Preparation, i.e., plantation washed coffee.

Broken Orange Pekoe (B.O.P.) and Pekoe. Mechanical separations of teas, comprising the smaller leaves and broken parts with tips.

broker. A tea broker is one who negotiates the sale of tea from one dealer to another for the consideration of a brokerage from the seller. The brokerage in New York usually is 2% on general business and 1% on invoices, and in London it is half of 1% on auction teas and 1% for private treaty.

brownish. Leaf that is brown in colour, generally resulting from firing under-withered tea at too high a temperature or poor plucking. However, some tippy teas have a brown leaf which is desirable.

burnt. A taste of burnt organic matter in the liquor and a similar smell in the infused leaf is a characteristic of teas that have been fired at too high a temperature, usually during the second firing.

Cachar. The most common variety of India tea produced in the Cachar district of Assam.

caffeine. The stimulating constituent in tea.

caffeine content. In a cup of tea, less than 1 grain; in a cup of coffee, 1.5 grain.

Cambric tea. Hot water, milk, and sugar flavoured with tea.

Camellia sinensis (L.). All tea comes from the Camellia sinensis plant, a warm-weather evergreen. How the fresh leaves of the tea plant are processed and their level of contact with oxygen determine resulting types of tea. There are two main varieties of Camellia sinensis used to make tea: Camellia sinensis var. sinensis and Camellia sinensis var. assamica. Cultivation of the plant Camellia sinensis var. sinensis began around 4,000 years ago in Sichuan Province, China. It has small leaves, is better suited to higher elevations and a tougher climate. The native Camellia sinensis var. assamica was discovered in Assam, India around 1830. It has large leaves and thrives in the low plains of India and jungles of Yunnan.

Canton. A scented China Oolong tea.

carbon footprint. A carbon footprint is the total greenhouse gas (including carbon dioxide and methane) emissions caused by an individual, event, organisation, service, or product.
