Reach for the Stars: Celebrate Space Day!

National Space Day on 2nd May is an exciting day to celebrate all things outer space! It's a chance to explore the wonders of the universe, from the planets in our solar system to distant stars and galaxies. On Space Day, you can learn about astronauts, rockets, and even what it's like to live in space! Many schools get involved with fun activities for children like building model rockets, stargazing, or learning about famous space missions. It's a great opportunity to inspire young minds and spark an interest in STEM and the benefits of space exploration. So, whether you'll be celebrating at home or at school, taking part in fun educational events or planning a family outing to a nearby science centre or museum - there's a whole universe out there to discover together!

Allergy Awareness Week is Here

Taking place from 22nd to 28th April, Allergy Awareness Week is a great opportunity to learn more about allergies and how they affect people. Whether it's peanuts, pollen, or pet dander, understanding allergies can make a huge difference. The topic for 2025 is 'childhood food allergy'. Schools across the UK often use this week to help children become more aware of different allergies and how to stay safe. For parents, it's a time to talk about things like reading labels, washing hands, and knowing what to do in an emergency. Fundraising events take place across the week to highlight charities, such as Allergy UK, that offer support. The recent launch of a new allergy awareness programme for primary schools and nurseries aims to protect children by educating teachers and staff, promoting a greater understanding of food allergies and the issues that can arise. Allergy School has been created by The Natasha Allergy Research Foundation (NARF) in partnership with St John Ambulance and The King's Foundation, among other key providers and partner organisations.
